SUMMARY.

The correspondent of the United Press telegraphed on Monday evening: The Germans are at bay.

They are in full retreat towards the Aisne, and have been forced to abandon positions on the Avre and the Ancre.

Hindenburg and Ludendorff are seeking to rearrange the Western front, and shorten their line here and there.

They are adopting a defensive attitude behind rivers and other natural barriers, save at one chosen spot.

Here they will collect all available remnants for one last try for a decision.

Prisoners admit that a spirit of hopelessness is spreading.

They frankly say they do not believe it possible for Germany to continue the offensive.

Entente opinions at the front are that the fifth year of war ought to see the finish.

The enemy resistance between Soissons and Reims is increasing.

The French have reached the Vesle at several points east of Fismes. The enemy rearguards resisted strongly.

Light elements gained a footing on the north bank. Fismes has been taken by the French.

The French gained ground north-west of Reims as far as the village of Neuvilette, which the enemy is defending vigorously.

The Germans on the left bank of the Avre were compelled to abandon part of their positions.

A message from Paris states that the booty is increasing daily.

Probably 1000 guns and several thousand machine guns have been taken.

New York advices state that the French have reached the railway between Montdidier and Amiens.

The German retirement on a 13-miles front in the Albert sector was apparently begun on Thursday last.

Albert has been evacuated. The Germans are reported to be retiring north of La Bassee.

A German long-range gun recommenced shelling Paris on Monday.

A Berlin official report states that northward of Montdidier the Germans withdrew from the west bank of the Avre.

They also withdrew to the north bank of the Vesle before a strong Allied attack at Fismes.

The British advanced their posts on Monday slightly in Pacaut Wood, eastward of Robecq.

Hostile artillery is most active opposite La Bassee, north of Bethune, and at points between Hazebrouck and Ypres.

It is reported that the provisional Siberian Government intends to declare war against the Soviet Government.

The neutral and Allied Powers have been informed of the establishment of an independent Siberian republic.

The newspapers welcome the Japanese declaration that she is sending her first contingent to Vladivostock.

It is hoped in America that the mission, which is not hostile to Russia, will prove the initial step to Russia's reconstruction.

Russian and Finnish peace delegates have arrived in Berlin.

The British hospital ship Warilda, 7713 tons, was torpedoed in the English Channel on Saturday while bound for England.

There were 800 on board, and it is feared that 123 have been drowned.

Two British destroyers struck mines and sank on August 2. Ninety-seven lives were lost.

Correspondents on the British front describe Remembrance Day.

Services were held by all denominations behind the lines, with watchful aeroplanes buzzing overhead.

An influential organisation, known as the Citizens' Committee, has been formed in Melbourne.

It will probably extend its propaganda work throughout Australia, with the object of reviving the war spirit of the nation.

Mr. R. B. Orchard, commenting yesterday upon the more favourable outlook for the Allies, remarked that the war was not yet won.

It would be the final ounce of man-power that would ultimately decide the issue, he added.

Every eligible man was, therefore, still urgently needed, so that the Allies may possess that final ounce.

The enlistments in New South Wales last week numbered 230. Sixty-six were accepted on Monday.

From January 1, 1917, the beginning of the present recruiting movement, to May 1, 1918, the cost of recruiting was £221,634.

During that period 58,543 recruits were enrolled, the average cost being £3/15/9 per head.

A united national intercession service was held at the Town Hall at midday yesterday. It was largely attended.

The Moderator-General of the Presbyterian Church (Professor Macintyre) delivered a forcible address.

"We have suffered too much, and endured too much to stay our hands," he said, "until we have exacted reparation."

There was a large stream of callers at the offices of The King's Men yesterday.

Among those who enrolled themselves were members of the Federal and State Parliaments, and a large body of workers.

Mr. A. Griffith suggests to the Minister for Recruiting the formation of a corps consisting of men over the military age.

He points out that there are many strong, sound, active men, who would be prepared to serve their country.

Mr. W. A. Parker took his seat for the first time as Master in Equity yesterday, and was congratulated by the Bar.

A contractor was fined £200 yesterday for having failed to furnish State income tax returns for 1915 and 1916.

The Trade Union Congress yesterday discussed various schemes for the reorganisation of the trade unions.

A preamble denouncing private and State ownership, and advocating class war, was adopted.

It was held that the working class should direct production and determine working conditions.

Over 500 members of the Meat Packing Union are idle owing to short supplies of meat.

At a meeting of the Primary Producers' Union it was decided to proceed with the formation of a co-operative insurance company.

The Chancellor of the University addressed the professors and undergraduates yesterday on the University and the war.

He also inspected the men of the recently formed Sydney University Company.

The Marine Court found that the grounding of the Makambo was caused by the master losing control of the ship through a seizure.

As there was no evidence that the seizure was due to misconduct the Court decided not to interfere with his certificate.

The Court, however, reprimanded him for not taking precautions to secure the safety of the vessel.

The Government Meteorologist reports that there have been highly beneficial falls of rain over the whole of New South Wales.

Both Houses of the State Parliament will resume the work of the session next Tuesday.

An active market ruled for investments on the Stock Exchange yesterday, and prices were generally firmer.

Unusual activity prevailed in the mining market, and the listed sales were more numerous than for a long time.

There was a strong demand for all classes of dairy produce, and prices were well maintained.

Bacon sold well, and full proclaimed rates were secured for leading brands. The market was bare of butter.

Trade in forage and grain continued dull yesterday, but prices were unchanged.

Forecast: Still unsettled, with scattered rain and thunder inland and on places on the central and south coasts: some further substantial falls, confined chiefly to south-eastern quarters.

THE BEALE PLAYER PIANO AS AN IDEAL TEACHER.

In the early years of musical effort attainment seems difficult and far away. Youth is ever impetuous—easily discouraged. "Si jeunesse savait—si vieillesse pouvait." It is only with the latter years that full realisation for the necessary "grind" comes. The Beale Player-Piano helps to sustain youthful interest. It may be used to play the finest compositions in the musical world—with perfect technique and soulful interpretation. Then, when closed it can be used for practising purposes. You are invited to call any day to hear how instinctively human-like is the playing of the "Beale."

AT SNOW'S THE SPLENDID RAIMENT OF THE SPRING PEEPS FORTH.

FIVE WINDOWS
OF
NEW MILLINERY.

"The little winds is stirring in the trees,
Where little birds is chantin' lover's lays;
The music of the sorit an' barmy breeze
Aw! spare me days
If this 'ere dilly feelin' doesn't stop
Some new Spring Hats I'll buy.
Snow's is the shop."
(With apologies to the "Sentimental Bloke.")

And thus the Spring feeling asserts itself everywhere. Nature throws her mantle of loveliness and beauty o'er all the earth; the birds tune their notes to a lighter and gladder song, everything is revivified and rejuvenated—and with all these comes the desire to be in harmony with Nature, and put on new Spring attire.

Snow's are, therefore, devoting Five Fine Windows in Liverpool-street to a magnificent Show of Spring Millinery, interpreting and demonstrating the Newest Phases of Fashion, the latest colourings, and the most Up-to-date Styles.

First, there comes Snow's ISLAND WINDOW, showing all the newest styles and colourings in UNTRIMMED MILLINERY, in almost every conceivable shape, correctly interpreting what will be worn for Spring and Summer.

The NEXT WINDOW in Liverpool-street has a Galaxy of EARLY SPRING HATS, made by talented artistes in our own Workroom—confections of Ribbons, Silks, and all the popular Fabrics.

Then come Fashionable READY-TO-WEARS, shown in Coarse Straws, Tagals, and Pedals, including some very smart Hats—real jaunty styles from the American Houses of Fisk, Gage, and the Mattawan Hat Co.

Another Window comprises the NEW SPRING STYLES, all at one price—viz., 19/11. These you must see, if you would be abreast of the Fashions. All are made in our own workroom.

SNOW'S ALWAYS

REMEMBER THE CHILDREN.

The Fifth Window has been devoted to CHILDREN'S MILLINERY, of which Snow's make a special study. It contains everything that is Smart and Dainty in Children's Headgear.

SNOW'S SHOWROOM ALSO EN FETE.

After viewing the Window Displays, inspect our Millinery Showroom, where many other novel styles are on view. A Special Feature is the wide and varied range of Trimmings, in dainty hand-made Flowers, Trails, Posies, etc., all at Snow's well-known low prices.

FOY'S WINTER FAIR
FOY'S WINTER FAIR

SEIZES THE IMAGINATION AND SPENDING CAPACITY OF THE POPULACE.

The Second Day's doings at THE FAIR are always a test of the measure of its success.

Tuesday's crowds, we are proud to say, were as big as on the opening day, and equally as well distributed in all parts of our Establishment.

OUR PROMISES TO PROVIDE

SUBSTANTIAL SAVINGS AT THIS FAIR

were no mere idle words, but Guarantees, backed by previous performances.

And Foy's Customers and Friends always take them at their word.

FOY'S WINTER FAIR

PROVIDES A GOLDEN OPPORTUNITY TO INSURE AGAINST RISING COSTS NEXT SEASON.

Anyone looking in upon our Manchester Department (for instance) yesterday would recognise the wisdom now impelling hundreds of householders to secure

HOUSE LINEN VALUABLES, TOWELS, SHEETINGS, and what not, at the Genuine Reductions which FOY'S FAIR fixes on the goods.

Many of such purchases, we doubt not, will be stowed away in "the Bottom Drawer," but while who could resist the temptation to save against future costs?

Then, again, the fact that we hold goodly stocks of many "scarce" lines—all which come under the influence of "FAIR" Prices—is another reason why our Friends are having such a "FAIR" old time.

THOSE FILET LACES,

for instance, the envy of every feminine heart, and yet so scarce elsewhere, are being besieged

AT THE FAIR,

And in every Department "wanted" goods for everyday use are being sold at SOLID SAVINGS.

ALL FASHION GOODS

are marked at ridiculous prices to clear—especially in MILLINERY AND FURS,
COATS AND COSTUMES,
BLOUSES AND SKIRTS,
WINTER WRAPPERS,
WINTER UNDERCLOTHING,
CHILDREN'S OUTFITTING,
whilst in Gloves, Hosiery, Ribbons, Handkerchiefs, Laces, Neckwear, etc., the Bargains are Extraordinary.

IN THE MEN'S AND BOYS' CLOTHING SECTIONS

the Savings are most important, especially in view of the bigger important advances in these goods of late. Ladies are requested to note the Bargains in these Sections on behalf of their Men Folk.

ALL ARE BARGAINS AT FOY'S FAIR.

PITT-STREET HORDERNS' SPRING ANNOUNCEMENT.

THE PRESENTATION OF SPRING'S AUTHENTIC FASHIONS BEGINS TO-DAY,

AND WILL CONTINUE ALL THIS WEEK.

WILL YOU ACCEPT OUR INVITATION—
NOT NECESSARILY TO BUY,
BUT TO VISIT OUR SHOWROOMS
to inspect the many Styles and Novelties that are daily displayed.

Every lover of the Beautiful and Tasteful will find innumerable objects of intense interest in this important Fashion display.

THE NEW

SPRING MILLINERY

is instinct with taste and individuality. Daring innovations, and unexpected Style touches meet one in every model.

Especial attention must be claimed for the quite distinctive American Hats, whose piquancy and dash are as characteristic as they are "fetching."

FOR THE SPRING GOWN

The modes promise a generosity of choice. Frocks of dainty simplicity, Robes of exquisite beauty, and Suits of taste and style are in broad variety, each with that touch of chic "difference" that appeals to the feminine heart.

Considering the difficulties of manufacture and transport, are wonderful, alike in fashion and variety. The materials of established fame—Coating Serges, Covert Gabardines, Tricotines, etc., are in novel forms.

THE DRESS WEAVES

OF SPRING

Newport and Claremont Suitings are two new introductions of marked attraction.

NEW AND NOTEWORTHY SILK MIXTURES, such as Crene de Loire, Crepe Marcelle, Crepella, Poplin Caprice, and Crystal Voiles, make their appearance in the New and Tasteful Shades of Sand, Putty, Silver, Beige, etc.

THE NEW
promise to add a brilliance and beauty to the new styles far in advance of last year's experience.

AMONGST THE WILDERNESS OF SPRING COTTON GOWNINGS,
COTTON VOILES,
hold pride of place. Wide varieties, novel styles, beautiful designs, and tasteful colourings are prominent features, while the admirable PITT-STREET HORDEN ECONOMY is as observable as ever.

SPRING LACES.
SPRING RIBBONS.
SPRING GLOVES.
SPRING HOSIERY,
are all in ample evidence in the display to which

SPECIAL NOTICE.—The prices shown above and on the stock-sheets are merely estimates of present-day value, and are given in order that tenderers may have some approximate guide to the total value of the stock on such a basis, as well as to variations in quality and the relative values of the various makes. They are not in any way meant to influence intending purchasers, who are entirely free to express their own opinion of value in their tenders.

Tenderers may tender for—
(a) The whole stock.
(b) One or more groups.
(c) One or more lots.
(d) Portions of lots.

The aggregate amount of any tender for lots or portions of lots must not be less than £100.

The special and careful attention of tenderers is invited to Condition No. 2 of the Conditions of Tender, setting forth the proper form in which tenders will be received in all the above cases.

The highest or any tender not necessarily accepted, and where a tender, which is not for the whole stock, is for more than one group or lot or portion of a lot, the right is reserved to accept the tender for all or some or one only of the groups, lots, or portions of lots tendered for, and tenderers for lots undertake to accept either the whole or any portion of such lot or lots.

No tender will be entertained except on tender form provided, or unless in strict compliance with terms and conditions of same.

Deposit of 10 per cent. of amount of tender must accompany tender.

Goods of enemy origin (Wulfing Manufacture) are marked as such in stock-sheets, but the fact of such goods bearing an enemy trade mark will not debar any wholesale purchaser from selling again to a retailer.

TERMS OF PAYMENT.—Cash on removal of goods within fourteen days of receipt of notice of acceptance of tender.

Stock-sheets, containing particulars of the above-mentioned lots, and full sample sets, may be inspected, and tender forms and all information may be obtained at the offices of:—

A unique opportunity is here presented of replenishing depleted stocks in woollens and trimmings by purchase of these high-grade goods, much of which was imported soon after the outbreak of war, and the like of which it will be practically impossible to import until probably long after the termination of the war.

BUILDING MATERIALS.

AUSTRALIAN-MADE FOR AUSTRALIAN HOMES.

HARDIE'S "FIBROLITE" (REG.) CEMENT ASBESTOS CEMENT SHEETS.

Interior and exterior walls, gables, ceilings, and linings—in all of these "Fibrolite" is being widely used, and supersedes weatherboard, lath and plaster, and steel. Its economy—its absolute superiority over other materials—makes it most popular with builders, architects, and home owners.

"Fibrolite" is the most economical building material on the market to-day. It saves in first cost—saves time in erection—saves timber—saves paint—saves upkeep costs.

It lends itself to most artistic treatments. "Fibrolite" becomes harder and tougher as it ages, and is impervious to fire, rust, rot, acid, decay, and White Ants.

Don't fail to ask us regarding any point that is not clear to you.

Also ask about "FIBROLITE" CORRUGATED ROOFING—the only roofing of the kind made in Australia. "FIBRO-C" COLD WATER PAINT—the best substitute for lead paints. "FIBRELIC" BUILDING BOARD and THREE-PLY WOOD LININGS—for distinctive interiors at low cost.

Samples and prices from JAMES HARDIE and CO., Ltd., "Asbestos House," cor. Wynyard and York streets, SYDNEY. 'Phone, 8456 (4 lines).

AN ASBESTOS BUILDING MATERIAL. "DURABESTOS."

"DURABESTOS" is the original Australian-made Fibrous-Cement Product, and is the only material of its kind hydraulically compressed—this makes it superior to all others in finish and durability.

"DURABESTOS" is particularly adapted for the construction of Bungalows, Garages, Elevator Shafts, Stairways, Storerooms, Silos, Linings, Roofings, etc.

"DURABESTOS" is fire-resisting, waterproof, fumeproof, and rustproof—white ants won't touch it. It is a non-conductor of heat and cold.

"DURABESTOS" once used will always be used. A high class building material, moderate in price, it stands alone.

PUT "GYPSBOARD" IN NEW BUILDINGS.

Building with "Gypsboard" means building for permanence. It is wonderfully adaptable for all and every type of wall and ceiling work in Homes, Offices, Schools, Factories, Shops, Hotels—in fact, anywhere. There is no comparison between "Gypsboard" and lath and plaster, because "Gypsboard" is permanent, while lath and plaster is decidedly otherwise.

"Gypsboard" is largely used on new work, and also for renovating. In each case the work is easy and clean.

"Gypsboard" Monolithic Plaster Sheets mean modern, durable, hygienic, fireproof interiors.

On account of Mr. HUNTER WHITE,

JOHN O' LORNE (3)
(Brother in blood to Night Hawk, Leger, 1913),
Brown Horse, bred by Col. Hall Walker in 1908,
By GALLINULE (sire of winners of £314,866, and premier English sire in 1904, 1905, and 1907) from FAIR JEAN (dam of Scot's Saint and Thistleton, and sister to Cherry Lass, winner 1000 Guineas and Oaks), by AYRSHIRE (sire of imp. Traquair, Oreil, Ayr Laddie, etc) from BLACK CHERRY (half-sister to Bay Ronald), by BENDIGO (winner of the Cambridgeshire, Lincolnshire Handicap, Eclipse Stakes, Jubilee Stakes and Champion Stakes) from BLACK DUCHESS (half-sister to Balsamo, and second dam of Black Arrow), by GALLIARD (2000 Guineas, St. James' Palace Stakes, etc.) from BLACK CORRIE, by STERLING.

JOHN O' LORNE was purchased at auction in England at a high figure, and was imported here in 1913. He is a very stoutly bred horse, and his dam has produced two high-class horses in Scot's Saint and Thistleton, and is a sister to Cherry Lass. The last-mentioned mare was in training for two seasons, and won the Free Handicap, Champion Nursery, 1000 Guineas, Oaks, St. James' Palace Stakes, Duchess of York Plate, Nassau Stakes, Newmarket Oaks, and stakes to the value of £15,087.

JOHN O' LORNE is a sure foalgetter, and is a remarkably fine type of thoroughbred, whose stock, the oldest of which are now three-year-olds, are very promising. Very few of his progeny have been tried.

Own a Pianola Piano.

FOR, with ownership you know the thrills, pleasure, the relaxation of not only HEARING good music, but also of CREATING music yourself that answers and satisfies your own musical temperament and desires.

If you have been denied the joys of having a PIANOLA in your home because you thought you could not afford it—that reason is removed by this extremely liberal offer of £10 deposit and moderate monthly payments.

Among all modern instruments for supplying music to the home, none so fully meets the ideal requirements as the PIANOLA.

The Metrostyle alone is sufficient reason to make the genuine PIANOLA your choice. It is the simple and best means of correct phrasing and expression—your perfect guide to the master's interpretation of whatever composition you are playing. It is exclusively a PIANOLA feature (if a player-piano hasn't the Metrostyle it is NOT a PIANOLA), for it means real music, no matter how slight your knowledge of music may be.

The Genuine PIANOLA can be obtained only in the following world-famous Pianos—the Steinway, Aeolian Steck, Aeolian Stroud, Farrand, and the English-made Aeolian Weber.

CHAPTER XVI.
STYLES.

Every morning, from 11 to 12, and every afternoon, from 2 till 4, Mr. Styles patrolled the pavements of Queen Victoria-street, with what he may have imagined to be a business-like air, though it was both feverish and furtive. Nothing short of force could have prevented this performance, which had been going on for nearly six weeks.

Mr. Styles was looking for a ghost. He did not want to find it; he did not know what he would do if he saw it, but he had to look for it. Why? We should require liberty to examine his mind, perhaps his very brain, before attempting a satisfactory answer. For it was so absurd, this twice daily patrol of Queen Victoria-street simply for the reason that the ghost had once appeared there, between 11 and 12 noon. That was why Mr. Styles had chosen the forenoon hour; why he had selected the later hour also must remain an uncertainty. Possibly it coincided with the culminating intensity of a need for stimulant in fluid form. That, too, was absurd, for until six weeks ago Mr. Styles had experienced little difficulty in leading a fairly temperate existence. Yes, Mr. Styles had changed greatly in many ways. But he had not gone crazy. On the whole, his services to Mandrake and Glade were as capable as ever, at least. Mr. Mandrake overlooked the occasional blunders, not to mention the absences on petrol and other little shortcomings. No, he was not crazy—yet.

It was 4 o'clock, and of course the ghost had not appeared. If only he could hope that it would never appear again, or, better still, that it would appear once more to prove that after all he had been mistaken in its identity. But he could hope for nothing save a temporary dulling of the ceaseless dread.

He turned down a side street, and slipped into an unpretentious saloon bar. Having purchased a drink, he carried it to a table in a corner, and wearily seated himself. Time he was back at the office, he reflected, but without uneasiness. The office seemed to matter very little nowadays. He sipped the brandy and water, until lately a beverage unfamiliar to his palate. What a filthy taste!—and yet how good the effect. He lay back and closed his eyes. He was alone in the place; somehow he liked being alone. But he had scarcely realised his solitude, when the door swung open and a young man stepped in.

Mr. Styles had never seen him before, and merely hoped he would not remain long. Mr. Styles, not wishing to be taken for a drowsy toper, sat up and lifted his glass with an affectation of sprightliness.

As a matter of fact, the young man did not wait long. He did not even call at the bar. He came straight over to Mr. Styles, laid a visiting card on the table, and, without a second glance, went out.

Mr. Styles stared at the card, which appeared to be blank. With his disengaged hand he picked it up and turned it over. Neatly and distinctly printed in vivid scarlet he read—

David Bethune.

His glass crashed upon the floor.

It was some time before he felt equal to returning to the office.

Meanwhile the young man, who had waited outside long enough to hear the cash, was reporting the same to Mr. Sylvanus Phin.

* * * * *

In his private room Mr. Mandrake was regarding with something more than mere disfavour an ill-written letter which he had just opened, but which, arriving in the morning, had been laid aside, as being of no immediate importance.

He did not look up when his partner entered, though the latter was likely to be the bearer of news greatly desired.

"No luck," Glade announced, dropping upon a chair. He had shed something of his suave manner and debonair appearance since we saw him last. He had returned that day from Torquay, forced to confess that he had wasted a couple of days in that salubrious town on a wild-goose chase, tired, angry, and not a little alarmed. For why should the Silverests have labelled their baggage "Torquay" if they were not themselves bound thither?

His first suggestion that Mr. Silverest had left the country—bolted, in fact—had been rejected as fatuous by Mr. Mandrake, who had said: "That would suit us too well to be true. The truth is that your lady friend has bungled—betrayed her curiosity—and perhaps yours also. Don't ask me why the Silverests should have laid a false scent. Go and find out!" All of which had not improved the junior partner's humour.

And now he was back from a call at the office of Silverest and Son.

"No luck," he repeated, since Mandrake seemed not to have heard. "The clerk, Arnold, said the old man had just missed a breakdown, and was not to be troubled with business for a fortnight at least. He admitted having heard from Silverest this morning, but refused to give away the address. A hundred pounds wouldn't have bought it, either. Well, I suppose we must just await developments."

Mandrake nodded absently.

"There's another thing," Glade went on, as one who must vent spleen on somebody. "Styles is going all to pieces. He's never here when he's wanted, and he's drinking too much. That was a ghastly blunder he made in the Hillyard shares business—might have cost us a thousand. Why don't we sack him?"

"Can't!" Mandrake continued to stare at the ill-written letter.

"Oh, I know what you mean—worthy old faithful servant, and all that—but you'll pardon my saying that it isn't a bit like you, Mr. Mandrake! But if you don't like the job, give me leave to fire him."

"Can't!"

"What do you mean?"

"Well, it might be more correct to say 'daren't.'" Mandrake tapped the letter in his hand. "This," he said, "is from my housekeeper at St. Ann's—"

"Mr. Mandrake," the other interrupted, "what is the matter with you? What in the devil's name has St. Ann's to do with Styles?"

"I'm sorry, but—"

"A good deal—in the devil's name, as you have so aptly put it. My housekeeper writes in a panic similar to Styles's of some weeks ago to inform me— Come in!"

A clerk entered with a cablegram, handed it to the senior, and retired.

Mandrake took a paper-knife from the desk, and methodically slit the envelope.

"From Vancouver at last," he murmured.

"Ah!" exclaimed Glade, and eagerly watched the other read. "Well?" he inquired at last, impatiently.

Mandrake had lost colour, and the paper shook in his grip; but his voice remained steady.

"This," he said softly, "is simply damnable."

CHAPTER XVII.
MANDRAKE'S HAND IS FORCED.

With a shrug that suggested extreme irritation, Glade rose, and moving over to the hearth, lit a cigarette.

"If that cable is private, I wish you would say so," he remarked, "and I'll clear out. I'm getting a bit tired of your mysteries, Mr. Mandrake."

"Sit down, Ashton," the other answered without resentment. "You are welcome to read the cable." The thin paper fluttered as he held it out.

"Seems to have given you a shake," said Glade, glancing curiously at his partner.

Seating himself, he read:

"David Starforth, formerly David Bethune, junior, changed name condition uncle's will. Estate worth upwards million dollars. Letter follows."

He lifted his eyes; his smile was sickly.

"A million dollars. Well, that dishes us."

"You have pitched on the less of the two evils," Mandrake remarked. "But, of course, you have done so in ignorance. What really matters at the moment is the identity of Starforth with Bethune."

"Bethune?—oh Lord!—Styles' friend!"

"Styles' bitterest enemy. I'm afraid—and ours!" Mandrake's hand went up commanding silence. "The letter I was reading when you came in," he proceeded, "was from my housekeeper at St. Ann's ——"

"What on earth has she to do with this business?"

"Be patient! It is the letter of a terrified woman. Like our friend Styles, she has seen a ghost—the ghost of David Bethune, Senior."

"Then Bethune—Starforth—is at St. Ann's!"

"Exactly!"

"But why all this fuss about the man? Why should he be our enemy, and our servants' as well?"

"Perhaps I have been too quick to accept him as our enemy," said Mandrake slowly. "As yet I have no direct evidence that he is. But I am bound to assume that he has been brought up to regard his father as a much injured man." There was a pause.

"You are telling me nothing at all," said Glade fretfully.

"I am about to tell you much which, frankly, I would rather not tell you. The thing is twenty years old, and I may have to exert my memory over details, so I must ask you not to interrupt."

Thereupon Mr. Mandrake proceeded to relate the history of his late partner's, the senior Bethune's, downfall. He told it with what appeared to be sincere compunction and sorrow. The unfortunate Bethune, having got out of his depth in a secret speculation, had "borrowed" a parcel of bonds belonging to a client. When exposure came he had stoutly denied the crime; nevertheless, the bonds were found concealed in his house. And so on . . . .

WOMEN'S COLUMN.

A NATURE LOVER.

At the present time there is an effort to make Australian children more intimately acquainted with their own land and, by study of the beauties of nature, to learn to love it with the intensity that is true patriotism. There have been women who understood that only by a full and intimate knowledge is love of country begotten. Mary A. Fitzgerald, whose books are now quite out of print, is among those who have written with, as she says, "the chief object of enlisting the interest of my little countrymen and countrywomen in the natural history of the beautiful birds and other animals of their own 'sunny land.'" The first book, "Australian Furs and Feathers," is dedicated to Lady Carrington, and is written just 30 years ago. "It is in appreciation of the deep interest she has manifested in all that concerns Australian children. This book is, with kind permission, most respectfully dedicated to her ladyship." The pictures throughout are by W. T. Anderson, and give a good idea of the different birds and beasts under review. The book abounds in interesting facts, and plainly shows that it is the work of a keen student of nature. In the chapter on the emu (Dromaeus Australis) we read when speared the emu afforded a splendid feast for the black hunter, who we are told used to make an oven in the clay, in which the bird was cooked without even being plucked. For some reason unknown to us, its flesh was not allowed to be eaten by young men or boys. Emu oil is largely used by bushmen as a remedy for aches and pains. It feeds on herbs and seeds of grasses, and builds no nest, but simply scrapes a shallow hole in the ground and there lays its eggs and hatches its young ones."

The native names of many Australian animals are given, thus, the emu is called the worengnonder, the woorooeabbie, and the bungeeera. In an old publisher's sale I lately came across a great heap of another of Mary Fitzgerald's books, "King Bungaree's Pyralla." A few other short stories of the aborigines are included in the little red paper-covered volume, the date of which was 1891. The explanation given was that the writer had died before she could take over receipt of the books. If so it is the old story that few authors live to see the full appreciation of what they have committed to paper. If those who are interested in setting young minds in the road to knowing and loving Australia and her ways will look up these little works in the Public Library they will be rewarded by much information and will help to carry on the honour of the writer of the volumes.

FROM NEAR AND FAR.

Voluntary Aid Detachment No. 75 (Public Service women), formed last month, now has a strength of over 100 members. On A.I.F. Memorial Day the detachment was in evidence in Macquarie-place, where the gaily-decorated stalls and the flags and bunting displayed made a brilliant picture, and the efforts of the members of the detachment, with the help of a number of very willing fellow officers, resulted in the addition of close on £600 to the funds for the memorial. New members may be enrolled in the detachment on Wednesday, August 7 (drill night), or on Thursday, August 8, when Dr. Sybil Bevan delivers the second of a series of lectures on first aid to members of the detachment at Hardie and Gorman's rooms, Moore-street, Sydney.

In aid of the A.I.F. Memorial Fund a successful dance was held on July 31 by the members of the staff of James Stedman-Henderson's Sweets, Limited, the proceeds being estimated at £36. Miss Membrey and Mr. Chas. Robinson were joint honorary secretaries, Misses K. Lackey and G. Jenkins joint honorary treasurers, Misses D. Wilson, J. Browlow, L. M'Keowe, M. Wymer, and Mr. W. Dunningham (committee).

The Waverley Victory Policies Fund benefitted to the extent of £80.17.11 as the result of a bazaar and entertainment which was held at the Coronation Hall, Bondi Junction. The bazaar was officially opened by Lady Carruthers, and organised by Mrs. H. Welford.

The honorary secretary of the 18th Battalion Comforts Fund has received letters this mail from the colonel saying the socks were still coming along regularly, and were much appreciated, and that the men had had a lot of fighting during June, and were looking forward to a well-earned rest. The committee has posted another batch of socks (340 pairs for the month of July), and have another 150 pairs ready to post. The next committee meeting will be held this afternoon at 3 o'clock. The stall for A.I.F. Day, Mrs. Woolcott honorary secretary, in charge, realised £170. The jumble sale is still held every Friday at Paddy's Market.

An afternoon's entertainment was given by Mr. and Mrs. C. E. Waters at their home, St. Mervyns, Double Bay, to 30 of the patients residing at the Royal Alexandra Hospital for Children. The little ones were driven to and from the hospital in motor cars, thus enabling quite a number to attend who otherwise would have been unable to do so. The entertainment and party provided was highly enjoyed by the children. Each child was sent back to the hospital with a present.

Under "Public Notices" to-day an announcement is made in connection with unclaimed prizes of the Children's Hospital's recent carnival and art union.

RUBBER GLOVES.

Women who are forced to perform numbers of rougher household duties, particularly in the country, where conveniences for ease in working are not as readily attainable as in the city, find it very difficult to keep their hands in good condition, especially when it is necessary to have the fingers much in water.

Rubber and cotton gloves combined will do much to obviate this trouble, and although many people exclaim over the extravagance of rubber gloves, owing to their short life, if the precautions mentioned here are carefully followed, a pair of rubber gloves at 1/11 worn with a big pair of cotton gardening gloves at 10d or 1/, will easily last six months.

The main cause of rubber gloves cracking is because greasy water is allowed to lie on them, and the gloves are carelessly pulled off by the finger tips. Always buy a large size of glove, and remove by turning back over the hand from the wrist. Wash any greasy water off before removing, and dry with a soft towel before putting away.

To keep knives from cutting, forks from sticking into the fingers of the rubber gloves, always wear the cotton gloves on top of the rubber ones. These cotton gloves act like a tyre-cover which protects the rubber tube. If by any chance an accident happens, and your rubber gloves do crack or get a hole in them, don't throw them away. Patch them up inside and out with a strip of L.O. sticking plaster, or if you have a friend with a tyre-repairing outfit, get him to put a patch on for you.

As well as using these double gloves, always be very careful to dry the hands thoroughly and rub in three times a day the following simple home-made ointment. Half a cup of marrow (if the meat famine permits), half a cup of olive or salad oil, ½d of camphor, ½d of spermaceti, or half a sperm candle. Your butcher will save you the marrow, or you can get it from a shinbone, and if the camphor and spermaceti are pounded up they melt quicker. Melt all together in a basin in a slow oven, and then strain. This is also an excellent cure for chilblains. Rub well into the hands, dry off any superfluous grease, and rub the hands in some dry rolled oats. About a pint of rolled oats kept in a box lasts for weeks and softens the skin as well as drying it.

If the above plan is followed workers will find they have no further difficulty in keeping their hands soft, in spite of such duties as washing up, peeling vegetables, and even scrubbing.

E. J. M.

TO CLEAN A CHECK DRESS.

At present many women are wearing black and white check dresses or skirts, made almost entirely of cotton. Unless the precaution was taken of shrinking such material before it was made up, it is very likely that washing it will make it shrink considerably. Black and white check stuff soon shows dirt. I successfully cleaned a black and white coat frock with benzine. I put a skirt board in readiness, and on a table near at hand a basin, three pieces of old linen towelling, and a large bottle of benzine. I spread first one sleeve and then the other on the board, and sponged it well with benzine, rubbing it well, and especially in the more soiled part; then I continued the process with rag No. 2, and finally with rag No. 3, rubbing until the sleeve was dry. After this I put the dress on the skirt board with the back part up, and treated it bit by bit in the same way. When all was finished the frock was put on a hanger and hung outside. The next day I pressed it carefully, and was delighted to find that it looked like new. Where black and white check stuff is washed or shrunk, put a handful of salt into the rinsing water, as this will prevent the black dye from running into the white. In cleaning with benzine no fire or light must be in the room.

ANN GRANT.

A social entertainment will be given by the returned members of the 7th Field Artillery Brigade to the ladies of this Comforts Fund at the Highland Society Hall, Phillip-street, on the 14th inst., at 8 p.m. It is hoped that all those returned from this brigade will be present, and make this a great success.

Friends Remark How Our Hair Has Grown Since Using KOKO!

"Everyone admires my hair, which reaches below my waist. I attribute it all to Koko, which I have used for many years. Whilst imparting a glossy appearance to the hair, Koko induces growth to a quite wonderful degree."

"I have found Koko beautifully clean to use, and it makes the hair delightfully soft and glossy. Thanks to Koko, I have lovely hair now, though it used to fall out badly. Friends ask me what I am using on my hair, and I tell them all, 'Just Koko.'"

"When I started using Koko my hair was short and straight; now it is wavy and past my waist. It is a lovely dressing to stop the hair falling, as it does not make the hair sticky. All my friends remark how nicely my hair has grown since I began using Koko."

"All my friends marvel at the way Koko has been making my hair grow. The first bottle was enough to prove Koko the best hair tonic I have tried. My hair is lovely now, although it used to fall out dreadfully before I tried Koko."

"My hair used to be poor, and barely to my shoulders. Since using Koko it is thick and wavy past my waist. My friends say it is a delight to see my hair down."

(NAMES GIVEN.)

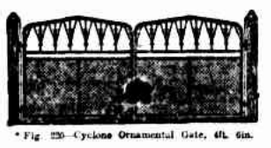

The soothing, refreshing effect of Koko creates a desire to use it as a daily dressing for the hair, thus keeping the scalp always clean and comfortable, and the hair in that healthy condition necessary to ensure an abundant growth. The increasing popularity of Koko for the hair during the past 27 years is due to the marked improvement in the appearance of the hair when Koko is used consistently, combined with its entire freedom from Oil, Grease, Dye, Odour, and any unpleasant or harmful ingredients. We use such testimonials as are offered to us voluntarily to convince you that, while Koko is so clean and refreshing as to be positively delightful to use, there is nothing better than the Koko treatment in promoting the full growth and beauty of the hair.

ON THE LAND.

MAIZE-GROWING.

For some time very good results have been obtained in Queensland from juvenile maize-growing competitions. These are apparently an adoption of the Boys' Corn clubs which have been wonderfully successful in the United States, and had a very good influence upon the maize-growing industry generally, in the way of improving the methods of cultivation amongst farmers. It is only to be anticipated that a similar result will be secured in Queensland and in any other State where such competitions are encouraged. We had some good results on the South Coast in the same way, but, generally speaking, there has been no strong effort made to establish boys' maize-growing competitions over the large area of country that is suited admirably for producing high quality maize in this State. This is a matter that branches of the Agricultural Bureau might take up and establish, and no doubt they would receive practical support from the Department of Agriculture. The results of the Queensland juvenile competitions for 1917-18 have just been made available. Of the 135 competitors who planted their plots, 67 complied with the rules and regulations. This is a somewhat small percentage, and better organisation should mean an improvement in this respect. With regard to the 1917-18 competition it is reported that, taken as a whole, the competition has been the most satisfactory of any yet held, as the yields are exceptionally high throughout.

The following is a summary of the yields:—Two plots returned from 30 to 40 bushels per acre; four from 40 to 50 bushels per acre; six from 50 to 60 bushels per acre; 14 from 60 to 70 bushels per acre; eight from 70 to 80 bushels per acre; three from 80 to 90 bushels per acre; 10 from 90 to 100 bushels per acre; six from 100 to 110 bushels per acre; five from 110 to 120 bushels per acre; five from 120 to 135.9 bushels per acre; three from 145 to 169.6 bushels per acre. The average yield for the competition plots is 83.5 bushels, whilst that of the State is under 25 bushels per acre respectively. Prizes were offered for the yield per acre, quality of the grain, and uniformity of ear, and the keeping of records showing field data. It will be seen that the two lowest plots returned a better yield than the average for the State, while the general average of the competition plots, 83.5 bushels, compared with the State average of 25 bushels per acre, must surely be sufficient to compel growers to consider the advisability of altering their methods, or giving more attention to their crops. The top yields, 145 to 169.6 bushels per acre, are, of course, magnificent results, and should attract attention to the districts that produced them. A plot at Booie yielded 169.6 bushels, and at Killarney 153.3 and 145.1. Allowing that it may not be practicable to give a paddock of maize the attention that would be given to a small plot, the general average proves unmistakably that it is possible to greatly increase the average of the State, and the same thing would apply in this State as in Queensland.

STUD STOCK.

The Imperial Government having decided to restrict the exportation of stud stock should prove of considerable moment to breeders of such stock in this country. It is understood that the export of cattle, sheep, and pigs from Great Britain will be limited to a number, not exceeding the average exported by any one individual to any particular destination during the three years 1915-17. If such is the case the result will be to send buyers from North and South America and South Africa elsewhere for stud stock, and that will bring Australia and New Zealand into notice, as suppliers of stud stock. To some extent this has resulted already, as it is reported that the New Zealand breeders of long wools have been doing very satisfactory business of late with buyers from Argentina. Inquiries for stud cattle have also been made in this country from abroad, and there are indications of an increasing trade in this direction. Hence the value of the steps that have been taken to establish and strengthen the different stud books. Experience shows that these buyers simply will not look at unregistered stock, and it is our business to meet the requirements of our customers, more particularly when it must be admitted that such requirements are only fair and wise. The quite unexpected and abnormal development in live stock affairs the world over during the last four years will bring realisation and proof of the need and value of stud herd and flock books, much more speedily than was expected, which will be a good thing, both for the local as well as any export trade in stud stock.

PRICE-FIXING OF MEAT.

"C.O.M.P." writes:—Unfortunately for the meat-raisers of Australia the powers that be have, in reducing meat prices, subscribed to that pernicious doctrine of "the end justifies the means," notwithstanding the fact that the means adopted are nothing more or less than actually stealing from thousands of meat-raisers, large and small, their income for a year or more from this branch of their industry. Let me take the case of a man who, in the early part of the present year or the latter end of last year, bought stock at the then current prices. His motive for doing this was in the majority of cases to utilise his surplus feed, which, unless he took this course, would have gone to waste. Hence his motive cannot be assailed, but rather commended, from a national point of view. The then current rates for store stock were calculated on the basis of fat stock prices, which were from £2/15/ to £3 per hundred, in the ratio of as fat stock are to stores so is the ruling price of the former to the value of the latter. Store stock were purchased at from £2/15/ to £3 per hundred, calculated in the manner stated above; and now, after carrying them for six or eight months, they are worth less than when purchased if the fixed price of £2/2/ per hundred must be accepted for them. This is due to the price-fixing, which clearly is robbing that man of his legitimate income. We find the Government so far forgetting itself as to allow one section of the community to be robbed of their just rights for the benefit of another section, because the latter have the most influence. We have heard much concerning the beef barons of Australia and the speculators, but if our city friends out understood country conditions, and the strugglers who are being victimised by this vile robbery, they would think twice before they advocated stealing the income of many stockowners, who, far from being beef barons or speculators, are merely struggling farmers, who have never known, and never will know, the meaning of the comfort enjoyed by thousands of those whom it is proposed to benefit by supplying them with cheaper meat. If stockowners do not send forward their fat stock to market next week, or the week after, it will be because they at least want to get their own money back for their stock; for, since many have borrowed the money to buy them with, they cannot afford to lose borrowed capital.

SUDAN GRASS.

In the "Agricultural Gazette" the Government Agrostologist, Mr. E. Breakwell, thus sums up the reports of trials with Sudan grass, which during the past year have been conducted by private farmers, on farmers' experiment plots under the supervision of inspectors of agriculture, and at departmental experiment farms:—

1. During last season Sudan grass did remarkably well on the coast and slopes of the interior as far west as Nyngan. It does not thrive, however, in cold districts such as Braidwood.
2. Farmers and experimentalists all testify as to its succulence and palatability.
3. Sudan grass is characterised by a remarkable rapidity of growth, only eight weeks intervening between each cutting.
4. The grass will stand periods of dry weather, and also heavy rains. The season at Casino was phenomenally wet, yet a heavy crop was obtained; and at Yanco the grass was not affected by a week's inundation of water.
5. It seems advisable to sow fairly early in the spring. By this means the grass is well established by midsummer and better able to stand adverse conditions in January and February. On the other hand, by sowing late (December) the grass cannot stand adverse conditions in January or February, and is likely to prove a failure. In the north-west, west, and North Coast, sowing in September is recommended, and elsewhere in October.
6. It appears advisable to cultivate the grass during its growing period. This can only be done by sowing in drills sufficiently wide apart to allow for such cultivation.
7. The use of fertilisers has again been proved to be very beneficial. An application of 1 to 2 cwt. of superphosphate is recommended. (See also the experiments of Mr. S. Hinder, of Tallawang, referred to in the report of the Tallawang Branch of the Agricultural Bureau, later in this issue.)
The action of the fertilisers is most evident in the first crop, and its effect disappears towards the end of the season.
8. Grazing the first crop appears to encourage the stooling properties of the grass, and, if rested at intervals, it will carry a fair amount of stock during the summer. At Yanco Experiment Farm one acre would have carried three cows for 42 periods of four hours each.
9. If fed in conjunction with a crop like lucerne, the grass is likely to increase the milk yield from 25 to 30 per cent. than if fed on lucerne alone.
10. Sudan grass has again been recommended (a) for hay, (b) for soiling, and (c) as a feeding-off crop during the summer months.

Altogether nine blocks were sold by auction and privately, £7/15/ per acre being the highest price obtained, the purchasers being all residents of this district.

LAW REPORT.

SUPREME COURT.

FULL COURT.

(Before Mr. Justice Pring, Mr. Justice Sly, and Mr. Justice Gordon.)

DISPUTED RIGHT OF APPEAL.

Rofe v Mick Simmons, Ltd.

An application for leave to appeal to the Privy Council was made on behalf of the defendants in the matter of Rofe v Mick Simmons, Ltd., a special case decided by the Full Court last month. The plaintiff was Thomas Ernest Rofe, landlord, and the defendants his tenants. In 1910 the plaintiff leased to the defendants certain premises in the city of Sydney for a term of 20 years, as from September 1, 1907, and the parties agreed that their rights and liabilities under the lease should be determined as if the lease had been entered into in 1907. By the lease the defendants covenanted to pay, inter alia, municipal rates and taxes. From 1908 onwards to the present time the Sydney City Council had levied rates under the Sydney Corporation Amendment Acts of 1908 and 1916. The defendants deducted from rent due to the plaintiff a sum equivalent of 1d in the £ on the unimproved value of the premises leased, and the plaintiff claimed that this deduction was improperly made, suing in an action for the amount thereof. The main point for the determination of the Full Court in the special case was whether section 11 of the Act of 1908, by implication, directed the Commissioners of Income Tax, in a case where the lease was entered into before November 1, 1908, to make, in the case of a lease under 30 years, an adjustment similar to that which they were already directed to make in the case of a lease for 30 years; and whether, if so, such an adjustment was a condition precedent to a lessee deducting any amount in respect of rates. The Court unanimously held that the Act of 1908 in effect extended the provisions of the Land Tax Leases Act of 1902 to leases under 30 years entered into before November 12, 1908, and that therefore lessees of such leases were entitled to have an adjustment made by the Commissioners of Taxation, but could not deduct any sum in respect of rates, except such sums as might be determined to be deductable under such adjustment. Defendants now applied for leave to appeal from this decision to the Privy Council under B(2) of the Appeal Rules of 1909. It was submitted that the decision in question was of the character indicated in the rule, because it must affect a large number of leases. All those leases under 30 years which had a currency at the date of the judgment and had been entered into before 1908 would be affected by the decision, and the effect would not be confined simply to Sydney, because there was a similar provision in the Local Government Act. A further difficulty which presented itself was that as a result of the judgment the Commissioners of Taxation would have imposed upon them a duty which the Legislature when passing the Land Tax Leases Act of 1902 refrained from imposing upon their officers. The application for leave to appeal was opposed on two principal grounds, firstly, that the opinion of the Court upon a case stated under the Common Law Procedure Act was not subject to appeal, in that it was not a judgment of the Court; and, secondly, that the Court would not exercise its discretion under the appeal rules, assuming the matter to be appellable, under the circumstance of the case. Counsel for respondent contended that the decision in the special case was not a judgment of the Court, inasmuch as it did not finally determine the rights of the parties, and that it was not a judgment for the purposes of a rule giving power to appeal.

Mr. J. L. Campbell, K.C., and Mr. Halse Rogers (instructed by Mr. Mark Mitchell) appeared for the applicants; and Mr. Weston (instructed by Messrs. Sly and Russell) for the respondent.

The Court granted leave to appeal as applied for.

AGGRIEVED TRAMWAY DRIVER.

Ex-parte Malone.

This was an application to make absolute a rule nisi for mandamus, granted by the Full Court last term, to compel Ralph Vivian Hodgson, Frederick Meiklejohn, and Frederick Alexander Walker, members of the Appeal Board constituted under the Government Railways (Appeal) Act to proceed with the hearing of an appeal by Walter Malone. The facts alleged, briefly, were that Malone, then a conductor on the tramways, was absent from his employment during the general strike last year on sick leave. On resuming duty he was promoted to the rank of a driver, but was soon after de-graded by Mr. Doran, the chief officer of the branch. No reasons were given at the time, but Malone subsequently ascertained that there was some allegation that he was a "pro-striker." Malone lodged an appeal with the appeal board in accordance with sections of the Railways Act providing that a railway servant might be de-graded by the head of his department for misconduct or for breach of rules or regulations, and that in the case of a reduction of rank for misconduct there was a right of appeal to the board. The appellant subsequently received an intimation that some objection was taken to the jurisdiction of the board, and later learned that the board apparently had before it a letter from the Railway Commissioners to the effect that they had satisfied themselves that Malone was a "pro-striker," and, therefore, not entitled to the consideration that had been given to those who had resumed duty, not having been connected with the strike, upon which the department had returned him to his former service. A finding was given by the chairman of the board to the effect that an error had been made in Malone's promotion, which was corrected by removing him from the rank of driver; and that therefore the board had no jurisdiction to proceed with the inquiry. One of the members of the board, Mr. Walker, dissented from that decision. The point taken by the applicant was that there must be an allegation of misconduct to account for his de-grading, and therefore he was entitled to a hearing before the Appeal Board.

Mr. Watt and Mr. Patrick (instructed by Messrs. M'Coy and M'Coy) appeared in support of the applicant, and Messrs. Lamb, K.C., and Boyce (instructed by the Solicitor for Railways) for the respondent.

Mr. Justice Pring, in delivering judgment, which was concurred in by Justices Sly and Gordon, said it appeared to him that what happened to the applicant was that he was de-graded by reason of misconduct. If that was so he clearly had an appeal under Section 82 of the Railways Act, but had no appeal under Sections 85 and 86, which dealt only with the question of promotions. That being so, it was clear that the Railway Appeals Board, in holding they had no jurisdiction to hear his appeal, were wrong, and that the application should be granted. The rule was made absolute with costs against the Railway Commissioners and Doran.

SALE OF OOMAH STATION.

Moore v Dent.

This was an appeal arising out of an action brought by Brian Ludlow Moore against John Irwin Dent, claiming commission on the sale of Oomah station, in the Grenfell district, to the Mutual Investments, Ltd. The case was tried before Mr. Justice Sly and a jury at nisi prius on June 7 last and following days, a verdict being given for the plaintiff for the sum of £971 0s 10d. Against this verdict the plaintiff now appealed on a number of grounds, touching the admissibility of evidence, the questions chiefly arising being whether the recital in a deed of surrender, which recited a previous agreement, could be admitted in evidence against the defendant, although the agreement referred to could not be tendered by reason of the fact that it had not been duly stamped in accordance with the Stamps Act; and whether conversations with individual directors were admissible after the date of the contract of sale on the question of whether the purchaser was a bona-fide purchaser.

Mr. Campbell, K.C., and Mr. Watt (instructed by Messrs. Crommelin and Moore, by their Sydney agents, Mr. L. G. B. Cadden) appeared in support of the appeal, and Mr. Shand, K.C., and Mr. Curtis (instructed by Mr. H. S. Bland), for the respondents.

The case is part heard.

IN EQUITY.

(Before the Chief Judge, Mr. Justice Street.)

HUSBAND SUES WIFE.

Metcalf v Metcalf.

Mr. C. M. Collins, instructed by Mr. S. M. Stephens, appeared for Henry Metcalf, the plaintiff; and Mr. S. A. Thompson, instructed by Mr. F. R. Cowper, for the defendant, Eliza Ann Metcalf. The plaintiff alleged that prior to May 25, 1905, he was the registered holder of 561 acres 10 perches of conditional purchase land in the parish of Wantivel, county of Claverton. On that date the plaintiff said he owed the Bank of New South Wales, Junee, £1092/3/2, which was secured by mortgage on the land. The defendant, who is the plaintiff's wife, informed him that her sister, Betsy Jane Nash, had money to lend at lower than the bank's rate of interest. She would not, however, lend to the plaintiff, but only to the defendant. The plaintiff further alleges that he transferred the land to his wife for the nominal consideration of 5/. Later, the plaintiff's bank account was transferred to the defendant. The plaintiff now asks the Court to declare that the defendant holds the lands in trust for him, and he asks that she be ordered to transfer the property subject to a certain mortgage.

The defendant denied most of the plaintiff's allegations, and would not admit others. She stated that her husband had been getting involved in money matters, and that he had transferred the lands to her absolutely and unconditionally. The defendant alleged that, till December, 1916, the plaintiff had never made any claim to the lands.

The case is part heard.

Mr. James J. Walshe writes that in the injunction matter connected with the Parramatta Carnival he was not represented by Mr. Jordan, instructed by Messrs. Bowles and Bowden.

IN BANKRUPTCY.

(Before Mr. Justice Street.)

APPEAL DISMISSED.

Frank Joseph Lappen Measures appealed from the order of the Registrar of May 27 last, refusing his application for a certificate. Mr. Nott (Messrs. Thomas and Nott), who appeared for the bankrupt, stated that the latter now wished to withdraw his appeal. On the application of Mr. C. F. W. Lloyd, official assignee in the estate, his Honor dismissed the appeal with costs.

MOTION TO SET ASIDE.

Philip Fusook Platt, ladies' costume manufacturer, of George-street, Sydney, moved to set aside a bankruptcy notice served upon him by J. Weiner and Co., Ltd. There were two grounds in support of the motion, the first being that the bankruptcy notice was not in the form prescribed by section 4, subsection 2, of the Bankruptcy Act. The second ground, exhaustively stated in an affidavit of the applicant, alleged, inter alia, that the respondents had violated an arrangement, and without notice, signed judgment against the applicant.

His Honor ruled that the first objection was a formality, and he allowed the respondents to make the necessary amendment. Mr. A. W. Gardner, who represented the applicant, then applied for an adjournment to file answers to an affidavit by the other side. This, his Honor allowed, and adjourned the hearing for a week. Mr. C. G. Davidson, instructed by Messrs. Weaver and Allworth, appeared for the respondents.

MARINE INQUIRY COURT.

(Before Judge Docker, with Captain H. C. Chudleigh and Captain C. W. Davidson as assessors.)

STRANDING OF MAKAMBO.

Evidence in connection with the stranding of the steamer Makambo showed that the vessel on the night of June 14 last went on to a reef on the north end of Lord Howe Island. The master, Harold de Capell Wetherall, who at the time was in charge on the bridge, had collapsed in a fainting fit. The night was fine and the sea smooth. A lifeboat was lowered, and a lady passenger, while stepping from the steamer, fell into the sea and was drowned. The Makambo floated off the reef and was beached on a sandy bottom, where she was salved ten days later. The damage to the steamer is estimated at about £12,000.

The Court found that the grounding was caused by the master losing control of the ship through a seizure which rendered him unconscious for a period. There was no evidence that the seizure was due to misconduct; the Court, therefore, would not interfere with the master's certificate. The Court, however, considered that the master should be censured for not taking precautions for the safety of the ship, as he must have known, from previous experience, that he was liable to such attacks, and he should have requested the second officer to be on the bridge with him from the time of leaving the moorings till the vessel was clear of all danger. He was accordingly reprimanded. The Court regretted exceedingly that one of the results of the stranding was the accidental loss of life of one of the female passengers.

Mr. H. P. Curtis, of the Crown Law offices, appeared for the Department of Navigation; Mr. R. Broomfield (instructed by Messrs. Baxter, Bruce, and Ebsworth) for the master of the Makambo; and Mr. P. H. Sullivan (Messrs. Sullivan Brothers) for the mate and engineers.

ACCIDENT TO MALACHITE.

Mr. H. P. Curtis (Crown Law Office), who appeared for the Department of Navigation, stated that the steamer Malachite, which was on a voyage from Rockhampton to Melbourne, called at Sydney and left here for Port Kembla about 5 p.m. on the 10th ult. The night was dark, and when about two miles off Wollongong, about 11 p.m., the steamer took ground and sustained serious damage, which was estimated at £4000. The master of the Malachite, A. Anderson, attributed the mishap to the glare of the lights ashore.

At the conclusion of the evidence the Court called upon the master to appear next Thursday, and show cause why his certificate should not be dealt with. Mr. W. D. Schrader (Messrs. Sly and Russell) appeared for the master.

ALLEGED ROBBERY AND SHOOTING

Mr. Adrian, S.M., at the Central Police Court yesterday concluded the hearing of the evidence for the prosecution in connection with the alleged robbery of jewellery from a motor car, in George-street, on July 15, and the subsequent shooting of Detective Thornley, in a pawnbroker's shop, in Crown-street, Surry Hills.

Walter Grant, or Frank Brewer, 28, motor mechanic, was charged with shooting Detective Thomas Hugh Jonathan Thornley on July 17, with intent to murder him. Grant was also charged with having, on July 15, stolen 324 gold rings, 751 gold brooches, 60 gold bracelets, and three leather bags, of the total value of about £1400, the property of Julian H. Rosbery.

William Taylor, or Winch, 24, labourer, in conjunction with Grant, was charged with stealing the gold rings, brooches, and other articles on July 15.

The case for the prosecution was conducted by Inspector Mitchell. Mr. E. R. Abigail appeared for the two accused.

Julian H. Rosbery, a wholesale jeweller, in his evidence, described the robbery in George-street, between Park and Market streets, on July 15. The value of the jewellery which was stolen was £1000. The police had recovered about £500 worth of the stolen articles.

Both accused were committed for trial at the Central Criminal Court. Taylor was allowed bail, self in £500, and two sureties of £250, on the charge of stealing. There was no application for bail on behalf of Grant. The magistrate refused to reduce Taylor's bail to £300.

OTHER CHARGES.

Police Prosecutor Inspector Mitchell said that there were three other charges against Grant. The first was breaking and entering the house of Elizabeth Ian Southan, Gloucester-avenue, Kensington, on June 24, and stealing articles valued at £30. The second charge was having forged on September 20, 1917, an order drawn upon the Commercial Banking Company for the payment of £27. The third charge was that of having at Camperdown on April 11 obtained from Charles S. Mallet the sum of £6 by means of a valueless cheque.

A remand of each of these charges was granted till the 12th inst.

STATE INCOME TAX.

CONTRACTOR FINED £200.

Before Mr. Macfarlane, S.M., at the Central Police Court yesterday, Mr. Kidston, of the Crown Law Department, proceeded against several persons who had failed to furnish State income tax returns.

In the case of Lewis Thomas, a contractor, residing at Cremorne, it was stated that no returns had been sent in for the years 1915 and 1916. Mr. Kidston asked for a heavy penalty. The defendant, he said, was a wealthy man, in a large way of business, who had never sent in a return. Recently he was heavily fined for not sending in Federal income tax returns.

Mr. Boyce, on behalf of the defendant, stated that although returns were not sent in Mr. Thomas had been assessed. That was some years ago.

Mr. Kidston said that the defendant had not been assessed, and that he had not paid any income tax.

For not furnishing returns for the year 1915 the defendant was fined £100, with 6/ costs, in default six months' imprisonment with hard labour. A fine in a similar amount was imposed for not furnishing returns for the year 1916. One month was allowed to pay the fines.

A YOUNG BANKRUPT.

David Daniel Hill, a bankrupt labourer, who was examined yesterday by Mr. C. F. W. Lloyd, official assignee, before the Registrar in Bankruptcy (Mr. F. H. Salusbury), said that he had never been bankrupt before. He was 24 years of age. The cause of his bankruptcy was losing his share in Paling's-buildings, George-street. He owned a fifth share in Paling's-buildings. His brother and his three sisters owned the remaining shares. He acquired this share through his mother, Mrs. Zaymack, one of Tyson's beneficiaries. The bankrupt said that the value of the interest he had was £15,000. He had drawn the income, about £345 a year, since 1914. He mortgaged his interest to Mr. Murray Prior, otherwise Mr. Bertram Murray, in Elizabeth-street. He wanted a loan and borrowed £70 from him, giving his security over his interest in Paling's-buildings. He was paying him interest at the rate of 25 and 27 per cent. He borrowed the money to pay debts. He lost his interest in Paling's from the fact that he mortgaged it, which he had no power to do under the settlement by his mother on him. He could have mortgaged to his mother without losing the property. During the last three years his mother had advanced him about £1200. He used that money by giving loans to different people. He went horseracing, and thought he won money there. He had gambled, and thought he had won money at it.

Continuing, bankrupt stated that he would not say he had led a fast life the last few years. He had not spent a lot of money on drink. He had hired motor cars for six or seven weeks at a time at a cost of £5 a day. He at one time owned Cremona, Bromley-avenue, Cremorne, which he mortgaged for £1100, and a further sum of £250. He got rid of the money in enjoyment. His mother afterwards stepped in and took over this property. He thought that he had had £10,000 out of his mother's estate since 1914. That was money she gave him. His liabilities amounted to £365/6/10. He owed D. Jones, Ltd., £104 for clothing, etc., over a period of 12 months. He had played poker for fairly high stakes. His life was insured for £500. He had been up nine times to enlist, and he would go now if he were accepted.

LATE MR. D. CHALMERS.

Mr. David Chalmers, whose death occurred on Sunday, was an old and valued officer of the Newcastle and Hunter River Steamship Company. He joined the service of the Newcastle S.S. Company about 35 years ago, transferring to the present company on January 1, 1892. He served as chief engineer in each of the company's vessels, and was latterly associated in that capacity with the Hunter, which vessel he superintended the building of at Ramage and Ferguson's yards, Leith, Scotland. He was a thoughtful student of engineering, having read papers before the Engineering Association on several occasions. He also made a close study of the marine water tube boiler, and was quite recently presented with a gold watch and chain by the firm of Babcock and Wilcox, Glasgow, for data collected in the observation of the Hunter's boilers, resulting in improvements in water-tube boilers. He has left a widow and five daughters, two of whom are married.

RUTHLESSNESS AND ITS FRUITS

If the object of the Germans in instituting their unrestricted submarine campaign had been solely to increase the suffering and anguish inseparable from a great war they might claim already to have surpassed the fears of their enemies and the hopes of their own people. The sinking of the Warilda is the last of a series of outrages which reveal a state of mind incomprehensible beyond the boundaries of the German race. Whenever Germans in peace time seek to mix with their fellow men or proclaim the virtues of their civilisation, it will be remembered beside the bombing of a long-established hospital at Etaples, and the sinking of the Lusitania. When the state of the patients and their incapacity for further military service is remembered it must seem at first as if the outrage was instigated by mere pleasure at the sight of suffering, or by a barbarian's exasperation at defeat. The official German apologist, however, explains the destruction of hospital ships and camps on one of two grounds. Neutrals are told that the ship or the camp has not been clearly marked, and has been attacked by mistake. The less sensitive German public is told that all ships must be destroyed, whether they are hospital ships, merchantmen, or transports; in the case of a hospital ship so that it may be replaced by another previously used on some more active service. Ruthlessness is, therefore, another application of the doctrine of necessity. It shows not that the German is more barbarous than other men, but that he is ready to go to undreamed of lengths in pursuit of his ambition to press the rest of mankind into the German mould. The Germans will judge every action as they judged the violation of Belgium—by the tests of results. If it pays immediately, then it is morally excellent. If it does not pay, then it is best forgotten, or if it must be remembered then it should be imputed to the baseness of some member of the Alliance. The German people have now given the submarine campaign a fairly long trial. The leaders who favoured it still occupy a high place in their councils. Those who opposed it are still in retirement. But even among that docile nation there are probably many who have balanced gains and losses, and have found the campaign a disastrous failure even when tested by far lower standards than those set them by their rulers. The campaign has cost the Allies enormous losses of ships and money and supplies. But those losses will be of no help to the Germans unless they hasten the end of the war. At one time they threatened to do so. There were grave fears lest Great Britain should be prevented from remaining in the war by a shortage of food. Both Italy and France were made to suffer restrictions through a shortage of coal and provisions. The transport of troops to the East was seriously endangered. There was some warrant for the repeated assurance of Admiral Capelle that he could prevent the arrival of American troops in Europe, and that the Allies would be utterly unable to find ships both for troops and for food.

Some time ago Lord Jellicoe advised the British people that they must wait till August before they could be sure that danger from the submarine had been quite overcome. Last month he warned us that his estimate had been too short. Though mines and other weapons are now destroying submarines faster than they can be built there are still enough left to do immense mischief. Before August, however, the Allies had been able to show proofs that all idea of ending the war by a submarine blockade has been definitely frustrated. The outstanding fact is the arrival of American troops in France. The response to the demand made by the March offensive has been magnificent, and has been quite unchecked. An equally decisive proof of failure is the present state of the food supply in Great Britain. At Christmas time it was by no means certain that England would hold out. It was agreed that by the middle of the year restrictions would be imposed which a people unaccustomed to discipline would find very hard to bear. These anticipations were answered by the report of the Food Controller, issued at the beginning of June. It was then seen how the nation had been saved by the co-operation of a number of agencies working together with energy and foresight. Great Britain before the war produced enough wheat to feed its population for ten weeks only; the acreage under wheat has now gone up by four millions, so that one harvest can feed the nation for forty weeks. On a reasonable scale of consumption there is no shortage in either cereals, meats, or fats. Hams and bacon have arrived from America in such quantities that it is no longer necessary to limit individual consumption. The nation is independent of outside supplies of margarine. There is no shortage of milk or of potatoes. Another and even more startling proof of the self-sufficiency of the Allies is afforded by the offer of the French Government to supply Switzerland with eighty-five thousand tons of coal per month in answer to the German threat to cut off all supplies if Swiss factories carried out orders from the Allies. The answer to the campaign of ruthlessness has taken many forms. The British people have surprised their enemies and their neighbours by their willingness to submit to discipline for a great cause. The merchant seamen have shown a degree of courage, of self-sacrifice, and of silent devotion to duty not excelled on any battlefield. The women of Great Britain have been as energetic and skilful in the fields as in the factories. But the final answer to ruthlessness has been the uprising of the American people. There could be no better assurance of victory than the successive punishments which have fallen for the two crimes which Germany has committed to make sure of success. The first gave the Allies the sea-power, the wealth, and the man-power of Great Britain. The second gave them the disinterested moral strength of the United States, her resources, her organising ability, and the army which has borne so distinguished a part in the latest Allied victory.

ONE BIG UNION.

Nobody nowadays denies the right of the workers to organise for the purpose of collective bargaining in the sale of their labour. The principle is so firmly established in all well-ordered communities that it is no longer necessary to defend it. In Australia we have seen this carried to such lengths that it became the boast of organised labour that it controlled industry. Many years of public arbitration, with the sanction of the law behind it, and with the full force of the Government protecting all the decisions thus arrived at, have failed to produce an instance where wages have been reduced, hours of labour lengthened, or general conditions made more arduous. The tendency all the time has been towards improvement, until in many directions Australian conditions have set a standard for the industrial organisations of other countries. Trades-unionism has had its setbacks, but these have been mainly due to mistakes in tactics, and to the hasty acceptance of ill-conceived advice, which are characteristic of the beginnings of reform. The result of this was that the workers suffered, silently as a rule, and remorsefully, until their organisation recovered its balance. Now we have a desire to break bounds and run amok in the attempt being made in Sydney to found one big union. We pass over the fact of the unsuitableness of the time chosen to launch such a scheme. In the midst of war, while our race is at death grips with a relentless foe, our attention should be centred upon things which must take precedence even of the general industrial conditions of the workers of the community. Russia to-day provides a tragic illustration of the result of stirring up class warfare when the very existence of the country, the safety of every hearth and home, is menaced by a savage and ruthless enemy. In launching this scheme to-day Labour extremists in New South Wales convict themselves more fully of indifference to the future of our race than by anything else done in their name since the war began. But apart from considerations which must have moved all who are not utterly blind, the objection to the one big union should appeal to all unionists whom it is proposed to bring under the iron heel of an industrial despotism. No secret is made of the fact that it is proposed to "launch an Australian dreadnought" for the purpose of "abolishing the capitalistic system." And by some strange process of reasoning credit is claimed for the proposal because "we are the only country in the world to meet to consider it." Whilst violent exception will be taken to the suggestion, it is one of the most potent reasons why success cannot be expected.

A closer organisation of the unions is held up as the panacea for all industrial ills. The idea is being vigorously promulgated that the unions must come together under one control if they wish to achieve their ideals. But the principle is entirely foreign to the methods which have brought so much success during the last quarter of a century, not only in Australia but in every other country of the world. On a few memorable occasions an attempt has been made to introduce the principle into the control of industrial disputes in Australia. Without exception the result has been a calamity for the industrial classes. The reason is not far to seek. It is the very antithesis of democracy. It is mob rule as against intelligent control. Those who advocate it call it the "awakening of class consciousness," or use some other high-sounding name which means nothing to free-born Australian workmen and women with a voice in the government of their country under the widest franchise in the world. Those who advocate it studiously refrain from reminding the workers of this country that every time they have placed themselves unreservedly in the hands of a few industrial dictators they have been smitten hip and thigh, and forced to spend long months repenting of the rashness of the advice they followed. The attempt now being made is an essay on the part of one or two strong organisations to get control of the industrial movement in this State, and subsequently to spread their tentacles over the other States of the Commonwealth. A surprising feature of the scheme is that it apparently has the full support of the executive officers of the New South Wales Labour Council, the basic principles of whose constitution are a contradiction of the one big union idea. It is a serious mistake to say that the idea has not been considered elsewhere. It has been considered fully and turned down in other countries. The American Federation of Labour is the greatest bulwark against the one big union, just as it is the strongest combination of labour organisations. This matter was recently discussed in England, where the time is much more opportune, because practically all industry is now under Government control. The conclusions arrived at are well expressed in the pages of "The Round Table" in the following terms:—"It is easy enough to conceive of a community in a high state of national organisation if every citizen and every business were willing to obey implicitly orders given by a few supermen at the top. That, indeed, was the Prussian dream, and Germany has gone some way to realise it during the war. . . . The Prussian idea involves the surrender of all individual reason and initiative to the thinking of the few; the free idea involves the understanding by every citizen of the principles which govern national life and activity, so that he may take an intelligent and spontaneous part in promoting them." The ideal in this State, it seems, is to have one big union in order to cripple industry, "to kill capitalism." Those countries which know what post-war problems are because they have had war before realise that the only way to pay for war, the only way to improve the conditions of the masses, is to increase the productivity of the country, to add to the general wealth of the community. It is the duty of organised labour to secure an increased share of that wealth. To start by reducing it is to court not only defeat but ruinous stagnation.

Mr. T. W. Bagot handed to Mrs. McNeil a gold wristlet watch. Mr. Hugh McNeil had held the position of works foreman for over six years.

News has been received in Sydney that Lieutenant Leonard C. Robson, A.I.F., of Sydney, Rhodes Scholar for 1916, has been granted the Military Cross for services in France. Lieutenant Robson joined the Australian Army Medical Corps in 1915 as a private, and after serving with that corps, transferred in Egypt to an infantry battalion, and went with the first Australian troops to France. He was granted a commission in December, 1916.

Mr. J. A. Hollings, of the West Maitland Technical College, has received a postcard from Ruhleben, in Germany, dated May, from Mr. E. G. Noble, civil engineer, of Sydney, who was captured by the raider Wolf near New Guinea. He says he is in good health, and hopes to get to England under the system of exchanges.

PRISONERS OF WAR.

Mrs. Sargent, organiser and banker for the New South Wales Prisoners-of-War Comforts Fund, has made available correspondence from Miss M. E. Chomley, hon. secretary of the Prisoners-of-War Care Committee, London. A cablegram from Miss Chomley to Mrs. Sargent, under date July 17, announces the receipt of £400. "All in Holland seem well and happy," she adds. Mrs. Sargent was also notified by letter dated May 23 of the receipt of £595, as from July 17, 1917, to April 11, 1918. Miss Chomley spoke incidentally of extracts from letters from the men in appreciation of the battalion colours sent to them instead of Christmas cards. She adds: "You will be glad to know that we are able to send some nice fruit and fresh eggs, and sometimes a little honey or something of the kind to those of our men who have returned from Germany but are fairly ill. This goes in the name of 'Mrs. Geo. Sargent and the women of Sydney.' As both fruit and eggs are very expensive the hospital cannot always supply them in any large quantities, and it is a great pleasure for the men to receive them." Miss Chomley speaks also of the safe receipt by the men in enemy territory of "their extra parcels of food and money." Mrs. Sargent points out that mothers and friends have received letters from the men confirming this.

The New South Wales committee meets regularly to discuss matters affecting the men and proposes to do so while there is a New South Wales prisoner in Germany or Turkey.

WAR ISSUES.

CITIZENS' COMMITTEE FORMED.

TO EDUCATE PUBLIC.

MR. WATT'S APPROVAL.

MELBOURNE, Tuesday.

An influential organisation has been formed in Melbourne, known as the citizens' committee, which will probably extend its propaganda work throughout Australia, with the object of reviving the war spirit of the nation.

A large and representative deputation waited upon the Acting Prime Minister (Mr. Watt) to-day, and urged that the Federal Government should support the movement, which hopes to create in the minds of the people a true realisation of the position of Australia and the war. The deputation included also professors from the Melbourne University, a large number of medical practitioners, the Mayors of Melbourne and suburbs, presidents of various associations, and representatives of other organisations.

Dr. J. H. Macfarland, Chancellor of the Melbourne University, pointed out that the deputation did not represent any political, religious, or social objects, but claimed that they were citizens doubly interested in the welfare of the country. Their object was to ask the Government to support an organised propaganda on the issue of the war as it affected the Empire generally and the Commonwealth in particular. All men and women in Australia ought to have every opportunity of knowing what Australia was fighting for, and what the terrible consequences of a defeat would be. A fuller knowledge of the war should be given to citizens. The chancellors of universities in other States were heart and soul in the movement.

Mr. Archibald Strong said that there were indications throughout Australia of the most disquieting kind, and that the issues of this great war were not fully understood. They believed that if they could get a campaign of national educators in regard to peace and war, and have the position put fairly and squarely before the people there would not be disquieting beliefs. They merely wished to offer themselves as educators in the great work of educating the public on that vital issue. They suggested that literature should be prepared and circulated as pamphlets and leaflets to every household in Australia. Greater use could be made of the platform, and they proposed to hold meetings all over Australia. They would use such places as the Domain, in Sydney, and Yarra bank of Melbourne. Speakers would be properly trained to give the true arguments of the case. They proposed to address meetings on Sunday nights in theatres or other large buildings in the principal cities of the Commonwealth, where the true position would be put before the people. They recommended the appointment of a directorate of three men, who should be chosen for their organising and educational qualifications. These men should visit the different States and form organisations for carrying out the work. This was a national matter, and those men should have a free hand in the framing of policy. They should not be controlled when they were appointed by anyone in the Government, or any party. Above all things, the whole tendency should be to take the broad national view, and be dissociated from any party, sect, or creed. They intended to depend on honorary help, and make that one of the cardinal principles of the whole proposal.

Mr. Frank Tate, Director of Education in Victoria, said that there was an uneasy and disquieting lack of interest in the war. Differences and bitternesses were now more acute than ever: that should be stopped. He believed that the heart of the people of Australia was thoroughly sound in this war, at the same time the faith and enthusiasm of some people were perishing for lack of information and imagination.

Mr. Watt, in reply, said that he had never received a deputation in which he had such complete concurrence with their ideas and suggestions. Conditions in Australia during the last twelve months had been causing much more apprehension to those responsible for the control of affairs than they knew. Some of the Ministers in their public utterances had occasion to show what they thought of the developments that were taking place. He took the view that the community should be approached in a spirit of conciliation and education. He believed it was time that they endeavoured to march back to where they were in 1914. If that was what the deputation meant, the Government would give them support. The Government, however, could only give its approval, whether it was in the launching, supporting, or financing of the scheme, on condition that it would not be a party movement. There had been growing in Australia for a long time a lamentable view that the Government was something that existed for its own sake. The Government was the nation, and particularly in times of war it had no right to be anything else. He was prepared to say to his colleagues that if that was the spirit in which the deputation viewed the matter they ought to have no hesitation in asking Parliament for help for a properly governed movement for re-educating the people in this war. In conclusion, Mr. Watt said that what he called "the Bolshevik" had had all his own way lately. If the members of the deputation were prepared to train their speakers, spread their literature, and go down to the Yarra bank of Melbourne and the Domain of Sydney, he would say "God bless you;" the Government would help them. He would submit the matter to the Cabinet on the following day, and let them know the decision without delay. Now was the time to start their work: he thought the nation badly needed it, and could not get the same services from any other body of people.

FRENCH VICTIMS OF WAR.

About a year ago the Germans began to send back to France, through Switzerland, hundreds of thousands of French people whom, with all their characteristic brutality, they had deported from the portions of Northern France which they occupy. Up to the end of March last some 300,000 persons had thus been repatriated.

The Germans sent only the aged, the sick, the infirm, and the little children. They retained, for their own purposes—which amount to virtual slavery—the lads, the young girls, and the able-bodied men and women. Those who came back bore the marks of three years of treatment which can be better imagined than described. The little children were affected by skin diseases to an extent that rendered special cleansing and curative courses before they could be allowed to enter French civil life.

To receive and handle this pitiful stream of humanity, the French, with their customary thoroughness and promptness, organised "Le Secours aux Repatries," with headquarters at 2 Boulevard des Belges, Lyons, and we have received from this society a book containing photographs and descriptions of its work. It is a document which should be in the hands of every pacificist. It is but further evidence in condemnation of the human brutes who ravaged Belgium and France.

Agents of the society receive the repatriated people at Zurich, and at Evian the work of organisation, identification, and classification commences. There can be nothing more pitiful than the condition of these unfortunates. All have lost their homes and their worldly possessions, and nearly all have been torn away from parents, children, husbands, or wives. The warm-hearted French greatly value their domestic associations, but there is here hardly a family complete. There are thousands of children who have been separated from their parents, and who cannot be identified. The society finds relations for many of them, but many are hopelessly lost, and their beloved France must in future be their foster-mother. A special department of the society is constantly engaged on the work of establishing communication between the "repatriated" and their relations and friends.

The society's organisation includes great resthouses, orphanages, and hospitals. Among the latter is a large hospital maintained by New Zealand, and photographs of it are reproduced. The stream of returning people is filtered through these institutions, and distributed all over France. The society directs its appeal for funds to all Allied peoples who have not experienced these horrors of war.

NEW MASTER IN EQUITY.

When Mr. W. A. Parker, the recently-appointed Master in Equity, took his seat for the first time in the Master's Court yesterday, Mr. Bethune, the senior member of the Bar present, and Mr. G. W. Ash, as representing the solicitors' branch of the legal profession, tendered their congratulations. Mr. Parker thanked the speakers for their kind remarks, and said that Mr. Owen, the later Master, had laid a heavy burden upon his successor. His full knowledge of both the law and the practice of the Court, coupled with his unfailing patience and courtesy, had won for him the respect and esteem of everybody who had had the privilege of appearing before him.

FOE RESISTS

NORTH OF RIVER

ALLIED CAPTURES

LONDON, Aug. 6.

The correspondent of the "Daily Chronicle" on the French front telegraphed last night: Between Soissons and Reims the enemy resistance is increasing. Allied patrols which crossed the Aisne and Vesle at various points met stubborn resistance, especially near Fismes, Sermoise, and Muizon.

German artillery firing is intensifying, and their aviators are descending to low altitudes and machine-gunning the Allied troops.

A French communique issued on Monday afternoon stated: There is nothing special to report. Our light units, which crossed the Vesle, everywhere encountered resistance by the enemy.

A French communique at midnight on Monday stated: On the whole of the Vesle front the situation is unchanged. There were local actions between our light elements and enemy posts on the northern bank. It was quiet elsewhere.

New York advices state that the French have reached the railway between Montdidier and Amiens.

GUNS AND BOOTY.

A message from Paris states that the booty is increasing daily. Many 3-inch guns have been captured, also over 1,000,000 3-inch shells.

The Allied captures of booty are not yet computed, but probably a thousand guns and several thousand machine-guns have been taken.

GERMAN STATEMENT.

(Admiralty—per Wireless Press.)

A German official report states: Northward of Montdidier we withdrew from the west bank of the Avre and of Dombrook.

We also withdrew to the north bank of the Vesle before a strong attack at Fismes.

BRITISH FRONT.

Sir Douglas Haig, reporting at noon on Monday, stated: We captured a few prisoners in the neighbourhood of Neuville Vitasse.

Hostile artillery was most active at nighttime opposite La Bassee. It was also active north of Bethune, and at points between Hazebrouck and Ypres.

Sir Douglas Haig on Monday night reported: We advanced our posts slightly in Pacaut Wood, eastward of Robecq. There is hostile artillery fire southward of Ypres.

The weather hampered operations on Sunday. We dropped six and a half tons of bombs in the daytime, and brought down six hostile machines. Night-flying was impossible.

ENEMY RETIREMENT.

The correspondent of the "Daily Chronicle" on the British front states that the Germans appear to maintain their positions east of the Ancre. They have broken all the bridges north and south of Albert, and are strongly holding the crossings into the town.

A message from New York says it is reported that the Germans are retiring north of La Bassee.

RAID ON RHINE TOWNS.

An Amsterdam message states that reports from Berlin disclose that an air raid was made on Thursday morning, when heavy material damage resulted at Treves, and some material damage at Durern. Thirteen people were killed, and 17 injured.

SHELLS ON PARIS.

A German long-range gun re-commenced shelling Paris to-day (Monday).

PROPAGANDA.

MINISTRY CRITICISED.

In the House of Commons, Mr. Leifchild Jones (Liberal) initiated a debate on the Ministry of Information. He asserted that propaganda abroad was useless, because the whole world knew why the Entente was waging war. He added that it was scandalous that public money should be spent to propagate a Government policy which might be opposed to public opinion.

Sir Mathew Wilson aroused great laughter by remarking that British prestige had never been so high in Egypt, owing to the manner in which the Australian soldiers scattered money about.

Mr. S. Baldwin (Joint Financial Secretary to the Treasury), replying, pointed out that the Ministry was only established last March. The report of the Committees on National Expenditure dealt with many happenings prior to that date. Sir Roderick Jones, whom the Minister, Lord Beaverbrook, was appointing chief of staff, had severed his connection with Reuters. Mr. Baldwin believed the new financial arrangements would secure substantial control over the Ministry.

LEAGUE OF NATIONS.

MINISTER SUGGESTS HAGUE CONFERENCE.

Mr. G. N. Barnes (Labour member of the British War Cabinet), speaking at Cambridge, said he would include Germany in the League of Nations, because including her, meant a revision of the old dangers. He favoured the Entente taking the initiative, and suggested an inter-allied Hague Conference, including representatives not only of the Governments, but of the peoples. This conference might revise peace aims, and he was sure it would never include any country, except one, in actual warfare against the Allies. Such a conference would be of great moral effect in Allied countries, and might induce the Germans to reconsider their world position, and their relations with their present taskmaster.

Mr. Barnes also suggested the creation of commissions to investigate territorial adjustments, the limitation of armaments, and other matters.

BRITISH DESTROYERS LOST.

The Admiralty report that two British destroyers were mined and sunk on August 2. Ninety-seven lives were lost.

SHIPBUILDING ACTIVITY.

President Wilson and Mrs. Wilson assisted in the launching of a vessel at new yards, in Philadelphia.

Senator Hurley (Chairman of the Shipping Board) said the occasion marked the inauguration of high speed production in the yards of the United States for the ultimate purpose of giving the United States a great mercantile Marine.

GERMANY AT BAY.

THE SHADOW OF DEFEAT.

LONDON, Aug. 5.

The correspondent of the United Press on Monday evening telegraphed: The Germans are at bay. They are in full retreat towards the Aisne, and have been forced to abandon positions on the Avre and the Ancre, and near Givenchy. Besides the failure of the summer campaign and the steady disappearance of reserves, the Germans are equalled, if not outnumbered, by the eager forces weekly increased by tens of thousands of absolutely fit Americans.

Hindenburg and Ludendorff are seeking to rearrange the Western front, and shorten their line here and there, adopting a defensive attitude behind rivers and other natural barriers, save at one chosen spot, where they will collect all available remnants for one last try for a decision.

Meanwhile the oppressive shadow of defeat hovers over their army. Prisoners admit that a spirit of hopelessness is spreading. The following letter from a soldier on the Marne to a friend newly arrived at the British front from Germany fairly represents the sentiment among a large part of the enemy:—"You will be in the thick of things now. Shirk all you can. We are only fighting for the big-wigs now. We in the Marne fighting didn't get far. Our regiment was nearly wiped out. This war is becoming the biggest massacre that ever was. Germany is slowly crumbling to pieces."

Out of these battered, gloom-ridden divisions, Hindenburg and Ludendorff must reconstruct whatever force they can. There are indications that Germany is making desperate efforts to coerce Austria to help in France, and soliciting neutral labour and assistance from Austria, Bulgaria, Turkey, and Russia, with a view to freeing German workmen for military duty. German prisoners frankly say they do not believe it possible for Germany to continue the offensive.

Entente opinions at the front are that the fifth year of war ought to see the finish.

RUSSIA.

POSITION IN FAR EAST.

Semi-official Russian newspapers state that the provisional Siberian Government intends in a few days to declare war against the Soviet Government. The Siberian Government in Omsk has informed neutral and Allied powers of the establishment of an independent Siberian republic.

In the House of Commons, Mr. Balfour stated that the British Government had given the Siberian Provisional Government a categorical assurance that Russia's territorial integrity would not be infringed.

INVOLVING CHINA.

The Peking correspondent of the "New York Times" says that Colonel Semenoff (Commander of Cossack forces in Siberia), defeated by the Bolsheviks on the Manchurian border, retreated ten miles into Manchuria, pursued by the enemy.

The Chinese Government considers the situation dangerous. Yuan Shih Kai's trained army will aid the Manchurian authorities.

The correspondent adds that the Chinese Government has received reports that the Tibetans have revolted, and have German military advisers.

A report from Tientsin says the Chinese Cabinet is sending troops to Siberia.

A Copenhagen message says reports from Moscow announce the detection of a plot against Lenin and Trotsky. A strong military guard accompanies Lenin when in the streets.

Russian and Finnish peace delegates have arrived in Berlin.

BRITAIN'S WAR DEBT.

A GLOOMY OUTLOOK.

In the House of Lords, Lord Inchcape, drawing attention to the financial situation, said the high income tax retarded the development of the country's resources. Germany's finances after the war would be worse than ours, but that was small comfort. He estimated that if the war ended in March our debt would be at least six thousand millions, necessitating an annual payment of £330,000,000, making a total expenditure of £700,000,000. But the war must be continued until the enemy accepted the Allied terms.

We were now living in a fool's paradise. Paper money was plentiful because the Government was disbursing it. The nation must produce and export more, and consume less. Though the country possessed great recuperative capacity, he feared we must go through a long period of self-denial and sacrifice.

Lord Faringdon said that if the nation was to remain solvent many contemplated postwar schemes must be set aside. Any attempt to penalise wealth or interfere with the sanctity of capital would be disastrous. He concluded: "The Bolshevik repudiation of debt ended in the starvation of the Russian people."

Lord Curzon was afraid it would be unwise to attempt to go forward too fast with too ambitious a post-war programme, but he was of the opinion that the Government of the day would be swept off its feet by the persistent demand for rebuilding a shattered world.

IRELAND'S PROSPERITY.

SECURED BY BRITAIN.

Viscount French (Lieutenant-Governor of Ireland), in a speech at Belfast, said protection by the British army and navy had enabled Irish agriculture to prosper enormously. The foundations of Ireland's wealth had been securely laid. The question now was whether the remainder of Ireland would imitate Belfast's example and regenerate Irish industries. Already Mr. Shortt (Chief Secretary) was investigating the development of the Irish mineral industry.

AMERICAN OFFICIAL NEWS.

MELBOURNE, Tuesday.

The following American news by wireless is supplied by the American Consul:—

Another milestone in the American programme in the war against the German Government has been reached in the launching of the 7500 (dead weight) ton cargo-carrying vessel Quistconck, at Hog Island. Senator Hurley, chairman of the U.S. Shipping Board, said: "This is the beginning of an epoch in the nation's history. It marks the beginning of quantity production of ships in all yards in the United States. It is doubtful if any nation ever would have undertaken a shipbuilding programme on such a large scale if Germany had not plunged the world into war. We are in it, and are going through with it. We are producing more tonnage to-day than the submarines were sinking, and from this time forward our task will be to replace the tonnage that was lost. The vast scope of this programme is due to the vision of President Wilson. America must go on. It will take five years to complete the programme and place at the service of mankind a merchant fleet that will make enduring peace, bringing the nations closer as the eastern, western, southern, and northern States were brought closer by a nation-wide system of railroads. The end of the war will find America master of the process of quantity production of ships. We will build ships for ourselves and for the world. Through the efforts of the shipyard works a large army is now in France, and through their continuous work an army is steadily growing larger, and eventually will overwhelm the carefully-constructed military machine with which Germany sought to dominate the world."

The total United States' army and marine corps casualties since the beginning of the American participation in the war is announced as 15,196, of which 13,164 are in the army, and 2032 in the marines. The army summary is as follows:—Killed in action (including 291 lost at sea) 2373, died of wounds 907, died of disease 1514, died of accident and other causes 616, wounded in action 7044, missing in action (including prisoners) 710. Marines: Deaths 734, wounded 1220, in hands of enemy 5, missing 73. The total casualties reported for the week ended August 4 were 1430.

New York cotton is quoted: October, 27.97; December, 27.52.

HOSPITAL SHIP.

TORPEDOED IN CHANNEL

OVER 100 LIVES LOST.

LONDON, Aug. 5.

The Admiralty report: The homeward-bound ambulance transport Warilda was torpedoed and sunk on August 3. The missing number 123, including seven of the crew.

The British hospital ship Warilda, 7713 tons (formerly employed in the Australian coastal trade), was torpedoed in mid-Channel at midnight on Saturday while bound for England. There were 800 aboard.

The sinking of the Warilda ranks among the worst German outrages upon the Red Cross. A large proportion of the wounded were cot cases. The vessel was attacked in the blackness of night in the Channel. By the greatest of good luck the ship kept afloat long enough to allow the great majority to be transferred to the lifeboats, and later to destroyers, which were promptly on the scene.

The torpedo wiped out one ward, hence the heavy mortality among the occupants by reason of their helplessness. They must have had a terrible experience. The gap made by the torpedo allowed a tremendous inrush of water, and the ship listed seriously.

Captain Sims, who was in command, with a crew of 130, said he was attacked between 1.30 and 2 a.m. on Saturday.

Rescue work was smartly carried out. A member of the crew states: "Nearly all on board were asleep below. The force of the explosion stupified for a moment the crew on deck, nevertheless, all hands were quickly at their stations. The worst feature at the outset was that no one knew whether the ship might not sink immediately. Everybody did what he could for the helpless soldiers, although the task was difficult. The vessel floated for about two hours, giving plenty of time to get off the survivors. I shall never forget the wonderful work of the destroyers in the inky blackness." The survivors are not sure whether the vessel was twice torpedoed. Three at least of the engine-room staff—Milne, third engineer, Johnson, fireman, and Maidment, a greaser, are missing, also four stewards.

Later reports state that 600 wounded were aboard, and between 90 and 100 in the eye ward were drowned, owing to the inrush of water.

The rescue work was extremely difficult and hazardous owing to the explosion carrying away the companionway. It smashed the eye ward to bits. It was almost impossible to succour the blinded and semi-blinded men, who groped about in darkness in the swirling waters until they were carried off their feet and drowned.

In addition to the wounded there was a full medical complement aboard, also a number of Women Army Auxiliary Corps, of which the commandant was killed.

The survivors, arriving at a southern port, presented a pitiable sight, many covered only by blankets until they reached the depot, where the seamen's outfitter awaited them with a pile of clothes.

AUSTRALIANS CUT OFF.

The "Daily Telegraph" states that 100 walking cases on the Warilda, including some Australians, experienced the full force of the explosion, which smashed the companion-way and flooded the ward, cutting them off.

MELBOURNE, Tuesday.

The Minister for Defence (Senator Pearce) said to-day that he believed there were no Australian soldiers on the hospital ship Warilda. To make sure, however, he had sent a cable message to London asking for information.

THE WARILDA.

Built in 1912 by W. Beardmore and Co., Ltd., of Glasgow, the Warilda was a vessel of 7713 tons. She was fitted with wireless installation and other modern improvements, and prior to being requisitioned for war purposes was generally regarded as one of the finest passenger vessels engaged in the interstate trade. She was last seen in Sydney on May 21, 1916. Her principal measurements were as follow:—Length, 411ft 6in; breadth, 56ft 7in; depth, 34ft 1in.

THE WARILDA'S CAPTAIN.

Captain J. Sim, the master of the lost vessel, first entered the service of the Adelaide Steamship Company as second officer about 26 years ago. He was subsequently promoted to captain, and during the last 20 years was well known on the Australian coast as a commander of various vessels controlled by the company. Captain Sim's home is in Sydney, his wife residing at Cremorne.

AUSTRALIAN MEMBERS OF CREW.

The Adelaide Steamship Co. yesterday supplied the names of the Australian portion of the crew, as follows:—Captain, J. Sim; chief officer, G. W. Taylor; second officer, Dunn; third officer, Carmichael; chief engineer, Young; second engineer, Brodie; fourth engineer, Inglis; seventh engineer, Travers; electrician, Pape; chief steward, Kohry; second steward, Engledow; Purser, E. T. Bartlett.

A cable message received in Sydney yesterday stated that all the Australian members of the Warilda's crew were among the saved.

ENEMY AIRSHIPS.

The Press Bureau announces that hostile airships approached the East Anglian coast at 9.30 on Monday night, but did not penetrate far inland.

GENERAL CABLE NEWS.

WAR ANNIVERSARY.

AMERICA'S TRIBUTE.

NEW YORK, Aug. 5.

The churches throughout the country held special services, commemorating and lauding England's and the British Empire's achievements in the war.

A notable service was held in Trinity Church, in New York, which was attended by representatives of the British Government. The Rev. Dr. William T. Manning preached the sermon. A message was sent to King George for the British Government and people of the Empire stating: "We pay a tribute of honour without reserve for your part during four years of war, and we thank God that our men now fight beside you."

RELIEF TO SUGARCANE GROWERS.

BRISBANE, Tuesday.

Mr. Theodore stated to-day that the Cabinet had approved of the scheme which he had expounded to the deputation of canegrowers whereby the Commonwealth Government, the State Government, and the mills concerned would share equally in the scheme of relief to canegrowers who had suffered on account of floods and cyclones, and would bear an equal amount of the loss. The Treasurer will put the scheme before the Federal authorities.

RED CROSS MEETING.

U-BOAT'S FATE.

BRITISH DECOY SHIPS.

LONDON, Aug. 5.

Sir Eric Geddes (First Lord of the Admiralty), in the course of a speech in London, told a thrilling story of a fight between a British decoy ship and a U-boat. He explained that these mystery ships were one of the oldest ruses of the war. They aimed at decoying the enemy and then putting out his light. The service called them Q-ships. Q-50 had the appearance of a dingy old collier, and the crew, like a merchantman's crew, were a fairly undisciplined lot. They sailed under sealed orders, and eventually sighted a submarine. Q-50 immediately turned, pretending to escape. The submarine chased, overhauled, and shelled the collier, which feebly replied with a little gun. An hour and a half passed, and the collier was badly knocked about. Wounded and dead lay on the decks, and in order to deceive the submarine, the collier signalled "am abandoning ship."

A specially trained panic party went over the side in full view of the submarine and got away in a small boat, showing every sign of fear and haste. A shell went through the collier's poop, exploding a depth charge, and blowing the gunnery officer out of the control. Two more shells followed on the poop. Then the enemy ceased fire and closed in, thinking he had an easy prey. The captain feared the fire would explode the magazine, but waited until the submarine was on the weather side where the smoke would not obscure his target. While the submarine was passing the collier's stern an explosion blew up the gun and gun crew. Nevertheless the captain sent out a wireless warning to a man-o'-war, which answered the sham signal for assistance: "Keep away as the action has not yet ended."

The submarine shelled the collier mercilessly, but the latter had a sting in her tail, and fired two torpedoes at the submarine, then a third. The panic party had left the ship, but the gun's crew remained, and the fight went on. The submarine was badly damaged, and the collier was sinking. Warships, which were waiting on the horizon, hurried to the scene and found the submarine under the collier's heavy fire. They joined in the fight until the submarine went down. The fight lasted five hours. When the remainder of the crew were taken off Q50 was sinking fast and blazing furiously, with the ammunition exploding. It was by these and other ways that the trade routes and trooping routes of the Alliance were kept open.

IN AMERICAN WATERS.

A message from New York states that a German submarine sank an American tank steamer off the coast of Virginia, and 30 survivors have landed.

It is stated in Washington that an investigation shows that the cruiser San Diego, which was recently sunk in American waters, struck a mine.

A U-boat chased an auxiliary fishing craft, but on a large steamer appearing on the horizon the U-boat changed its course, and followed the steamer, allowing the fishermen to escape.

The burned hulk of a lumber schooner, which a U-boat set on fire, has been towed to port.

A RECRUITING CLASH

MR. J. STOREY TABOOS NATIONALISTS.

MR. OAKES STANDS DOWN.

About 1500 people assembled on the Corso at Manly last night at a recruiting meeting. Mr. J. Storey, M.L.A., Mr. Dooley, M.L.A., and Mr. Oakes, M.L.A., were billed to speak, but Mr. Oakes was not on the platform.

Mr. J. T. Easterbrook, who presided, in opening the meeting read a letter from the Recruiting Committee.

"Mr. Oakes has been invited to speak at this meeting to-night with Mr. Storey. Unfortunately, the recruiting officer making the arrangements was not aware that Mr. Storey had stated to the committee that he would not speak on the recruiting platform with a Nationalist member. Under these conditions he has been asked to cancel this arrangement, and has consented to do so."

Mr. Oakes, M.L.A., was, however, present at the meeting, and in an interview afterwards stated that he was there at the invitation of the Central Recruiting Committee. He was asked at Walcha by telegram on Saturday last whether he would speak at this meeting. He consented to do so, left the March to Freedom column, with which he was travelling, and came to Sydney on Monday. "Late this afternoon," continued Mr. Oakes, "I heard that Mr. Storey had objected to speak from the same platform with a Nationalist member. I was then asked by the central committee whether I would forego speaking at the meeting, and, in view of the circumstances, I consented to do so."

Dr. Arthur, M.L.A., the member for the district, was also present, but, like Mr. Oakes, stayed off the platform.

Mr. Storey at the opening of his speech alluded to the matter. Mr. Oakes and he, he said, had been personal friends for 20 or 25 years, but when he said he would never go on the recruiting platform with a member of the National party he had no idea that Mr. Oakes would come here to address a meeting. When he was asked whether he would speak at Manly he said he would, and that Mr. Dooley, M.L.A., would come, too, if a suitable date could be arranged. Until that afternoon he did not know Mr. Oakes would accompany him, and he simply told the Recruiting Committee that he did not want to go on the recruiting platform with Charley Oakes. He was not snobbish enough to object to Mr. Oakes personally. "However," he concluded, "we are all striving for one thing, but we go about it in different ways."

Lieut. Thompson alluded to Mr. Storey's hope that he would come back to the fold. "Well, after the war, there will be a big soldiers' party, and every man, on whatever side he is, whether he calls himself Liberal, Labor, or National, who has failed in his duty, will be opposed.

IRISH INTERNEES.

DEBATE IN QUEENSLAND ASSEMBLY.

MR. WATT'S STATEMENT.

MELBOURNE, Tuesday.

The Acting Prime Minister (Mr. Watt) made the following statement to-night:—"On Thursday, July 25, I was advised that statements had been made in the Queensland Legislative Assembly on Tuesday, July 23, reflecting on the treatment of Irish and German internees, the publication of which, the Government considered, would jeopardise the war interests of Australia. Action was at once taken by the Government. I communicated with the Premier of Queensland direct, and the censor authority took steps to prevent its publication. Many telegrams passed between Mr. Ryan and myself, and meanwhile the issue of 'Hansard' was suspended. While these communications were passing the military took possession of the Queensland Government Printing Office. The matter was finished late last week, when 'Hansard' was issued with the objectionable references deleted by the censor."

COMPULSORY TRAINING.

Mr. Watt, Acting Prime Minister, has written to Mr. Holman:—"With reference to your letter on the possibility of lessening the inconvenience to business firms in connection with the times and places fixed for parades held for compulsory training, arrangements have now been made for trainees living outside the sub-metropolitan area to parade with an area in the city.

STRIKE AT PORT PIRIE.

BROKEN HILL, Tuesday.

The strike at Port Pirie over coal work is not likely to affect Broken Hill for the moment, but any long hold-up would be serious.

TRAMWAY MEN AS VOLUNTARY WORKERS.

"A splendid example of practical patriotism," writes the secretary of the Voluntary Workers' Association, "was given last week-end by the men of the permanent way and overhead wire section of the Tramway Department.

WAR NOTES.

RESISTANCE BEYOND THE VESLE.

The official reports regarding the position between Soissons and Reims show that the French units which crossed the Vesle, everywhere encountered resistance. This indicates the intention of the enemy to make a stand along this river line for a time at least, although we have yet to learn whether he intends to hold it permanently or only to fight a delaying action while he carries out the orderly evacuation of the plateau between the Vesle and the Aisne, and prepares his new positions behind the latter river. His decision in this respect will be governed largely by the losses which he has sustained and the extent of the confusion caused by the more rapid rate of the retirement after the recent reverse sustained on the sector northward of the Ourcq. Another important factor will, of course, be the ability of the Allies to bring sufficient weight to bear against the line of the Vesle before the enemy has fully organised his defence there. The whole of the salient has now been completely flattened out, and any further retirement will increase rather than shorten the length of his front. There are several good reasons why he should continue to hold the line of the Vesle. A further retirement behind the Aisne would give the Allies valuable heights covering the north-western approaches to Reims. It would also restore to them direct road and rail communication between the cathedral city and Soissons. By establishing his front along the heights to the northward of the Vesle, the enemy would dominate this road and railway which perviously afforded such excellent lateral communications for the Allied front along the Aisne. In his present position the enemy will not be able to make use of them himself, but as long as he retains the plateau between the Vesle and the Aisne he can prevent the Allies from using them.

THE PLATEAU BETWEEN THE RIVERS.

As far as a defensive position is concerned the plateau between the Vesle and the Aisne is almost as difficult to storm as that above the latter stream. Its summit attains an elevation equal to that of the Chemin des Dames, which marks the summit of the plateau northward of the Aisne. Its southern escarpment is broken up by gullies, with intervening spurs of high ground reaching down towards the river and providing excellent observation along the valley. On its western half, between Fismes and the mouth of the Vesle, the plateau attains a height of about 580 feet above sea level, while the eastern half rises to 650 feet in places. The great weakness of the position, however, lies in the back areas where the Aisne cuts across communications, rendering them vulnerable to the Allied airmen, whose activities in the past have been a source of great anxiety to the enemy as far as his important river crossings were concerned. It is possible that this weakness has recently been rendered more pronounced by the rains to which some correspondents have referred to their messages. The United Press correspondent reported that the enemy was already in full retreat towards the Aisne, but, apart from this, there was nothing in the cablegrams received up to a late hour last night to suggest that the line of the Vesle had been abandoned. On the contrary, the late French communique showed that the forces which had crossed the river at places were unable to progress far beyond the northern bank.

ENEMY'S VOLUNTARY WITHDRAWALS.

Later particulars regarding the enemy's voluntary withdrawals on the sectors northeast and south-east of Amiens reveal little alteration in the position as indicated by the earlier messages. Mr. Percival Phillips suggests that the withdrawal on the Ancre front affected a longer section than that, between Hamel and Dernancourt, mentioned by Sir Douglas Haig in his report which appeared yesterday. He also throws some light on the position at Albert, and suggests that the town is at present a kind of no-man's-land. On the southern sector the re-establishment of "the German line affected a front of about eleven miles between Castel (below the junction of the Luce and the Avre) and Mesnil-st Georges (west-south-west of Montdidier). The French do not claim the capture of all the villages on the western bank of the Avre and Doms between the two points marking the limits of the line on which the withdrawal took place. This may be due to the fact that most of them are situated on the valley floor, and are probably in a similar position to Albert. The statement from New York that the French have reached the railway between Montdidier and Amiens is correct, as the line follows the valley, and passes through some of the villages which the French claim to have penetrated. This railway, however, has been of little or no use to the enemy, as the French on the Western heights have had direct observation of the greater part of it for months past. That section of it southward of the Luce, which the French have now reached, will be practically of no value to them, as the Germans still dominate it from the eastern heights. An unofficial message suggests that the enemy is also effecting a voluntary withdrawal away up north in the region of La Bassee, but there is as yet no official confirmation of this. The salient which he formed between La Bassee and Ypres as the result of his second offensive effort during the present year consists mainly of low swampy ground, and his failure to secure possession of the chain of heights on its northern side means that the troops holding the salient will experience great hardships during the winter. It is possible, therefore, that some alteration of his front there may be made if he decides to abandon his attempt to reach the Channel ports before the winter.

INITIATIVE.

Two great factors dominate the present situation on the Western front, according to a cabled summary of an article by Mr. Hilaire Belloc. These are the Allies recovery of the initiative on July 18, and the steady mechanical increase of the Allied numbers. The same writer, referring, in "Land and Water" to the enemy's possession of the initiative at the time of his successful advance to the Marne, said:—"The enemy has the initiative, he has the numerical preponderance; that is, we for the moment are first following what he does, and he not following what we do. That is the meaning of the word 'initiative.' He, so far, dictates the form of battle. And his numerical superiority means that he cannot only dictate the form, but exercise the pressure; therefore, he is on the offensive, we are on the defensive. It is the judgment of a fool to regard an offensive as victorious in itself, and a defensive in itself as a mark of defeat. The defensive is a phase during which he who has the less opportunity, plays with space and time as best he can, to his own advantage, until the offensive can be resumed by him in his turn. We must consider our commanders during all the defensive phase, even though it may last for months, as men making for victory quite as surely as though they were advancing day by day, and reporting the capture instead of the loss of positions, men, and guns. We must not regard them as men necessarily destined to achieve victory. . . . But in the development of manoeuvre, victory is granted, as a rule, not to mere superiority of numbers, unless it be overwhelming, but to superiority in will, decision, and rapidity of thought. The enemy may advance from this to that, he may report such and such captures, and we may be certain that he will make the very best he can of the shop window. But he knows, just as well as we ought to know, that the problem is ultimately one of expense. . . . All this struggle, if it could be observed by one impartial to either side, and fully informed as to wastage, would be regarded by such an observer as a race between two sets of losses, coupled with a contrast between two intelligences, each eager to catch the first slip upon the part of his opponent; the first gap, the first imprudent rush, the first unexpected congestion and confusion." General Foch took advantage of nearly all these conditions when he launched his counter-offensive between Soissons and Chateau-Thierry, and wrested the initiative from the enemy.

TREASON TRIAL.

MALVY ACQUITTED.

M. Malvy, a former French Minister for Home Affairs, has been acquitted of the charge of treason. M. HOSPITAL SHIP.

SUFFERINGS OF WOUNDED MEN.

Seamen aboard the torpedoed British hospital ship Warilda said it was impossible to fully realise the wounded men's terrible sufferings during the hasty removal, their helpless anxiety making it difficult to keep cheerful amidst the general confusion. What it was remembered how even the slightest movement seemed to cause them to wince with pain as they were gently placed aboard on Friday, it was marvellous how bravely they bore up under their midnight experiences. It would have been the height of folly to use lights, therefore the transference of the men was undertaken with a maximum of difficulties. There was no panic, but accidents were bound to happen. One or two boats overturned while being launched, and the crippled occupants struggled in the water until they were picked up. The captain remained on the bridge until the last.

The torpedo crashed in the starboard side, smashing the engines and dynamo and stopping the machinery immediately.

Eye-witnesses pay warm tribute to the army medicals' rescue work, everyone strictly following orders, namely, "Wounded first." Glorious bravery was displayed. Small parties continually went below and reappeared carrying wounded men, although they never knew when the vessel would take the final plunge. When every movable case had been cleared, the captain called for volunteers to remain and listen in the darkness for a short time for cries for help. Ten gallant men promptly stepped forward and searched the vessel from end to end, as far as the sinking condition permitted.

The missing include Mrs. Violet Long, Deputy Chief Controller of the Women's Corps. She was one of the founders of the movement.

BARRED BY AGE.

SPECIAL CORPS SUGGESTED.

Mr. Arthur Griffith, ex-M.L.A., suggests the formation of a corps consisting of men over the military age, and points out, in a letter to the Minister for Recruiting (Mr. Orchard), that there are quite a large number of strong, sound, active men who, while over the military age, would be only too glad thus to serve their country. As an earnest of his enthusiasm in the matter, Mr. Griffith offers to devote his whole time, without remuneration, to raising the necessary men, providing that the formation of such a corps is sanctioned, and to enlist himself.

He is more than merely enthusiastic; he is optimistic. "I am quite satisfied," he says to Mr. Orchard, "if you will give the word, that within a month I could raise in Sydney alone a body of 250 men between the ages of 45 and 55, quite fit to undertake almost any kind of military work. Speaking individually, I feel sure you will agree with me that men of the physique of, say, Senator Gardiner and myself (who have offered our services and been rejected), and hundreds of other men all over Australia outside the military age, but who have kept themselves physically fit, could, with a few months' training, more than hold our own with German landsturmers; and I cannot see why we should not be given the opportunity. Men of over 50 years of age are to-day being accepted for service in the armies of Britain, France, and Germany. Why not also in the A.I.F.?

ABERMAIN DISPUTE.

Referring yesterday to the threatened extension of the trouble at the Abermain Colliery, Mr. G. S. Beeby, Minister for Labour and Industry, said that for more than 10 years the Abermain No. 1 Colliery has worked under a particular system as to seam measurement. No objection was ever before raised by the men as to the system in vogue, but the miners have suddenly demanded that it should be altered, i.e., the measurement of the seam should be arrived at by a new method, which, if adopted, will undoubtedly add to the cost of production. The Department of Labour and Industry was not informed of the existence of any dispute which might lead to a strike, but after one or two interviews with the management the men left work. Shortly afterwards the men employed at No. 2 Colliery—which is in no way affected by the matter in dispute at No. 1 Colliery—came out in sympathy.

"The whole of the dispute," said Mr. Beeby, "is in direct defiance of the law. The men have worked under the system for the past 10 years. I cannot say whether the system requires alteration or not. That is a matter for arbitration to decide. The miners profess to want settlement of disputes by arbitration, but they stubbornly refuse to take the necessary steps to complete an arbitration tribunal, which can at any moment begin the investigation of industrial trouble. The federation itself must clearly accept responsibility for the present dislocation.

LATE MR. G. H. HUNT.

The funeral of the late Mr. George Henry Hunt, who was for many years in the Education Department, took place at the Methodist section of the Rookwood Cemetery yesterday afternoon, and was largely attended. At noon to-day Recruiting Officer Wilson and staff will make an appeal at Henry Berry and Co.'s, York-street.

To-morrow, from 1.30 p.m. till 2 p.m., the employees of S. Hoffnung and Co., Ltd., Pitt-street, will be addressed.

At 8 o'clock to-morrow night there will be a rally at Warringah Hall, Neutral Bay, under the direction of Lieutenant Nicholls and Lieutenant Thomson, in which local volunteers who are going to the front will take part.

It is announced that Senator Thomas will assist in the recruiting campaign from the 12th to the 17th instant. Mr. R. A. Price, M.L.A., is assisting.

LABOUR MEMBERS AT MANLY.

Alderman Easterbrook took the chair at a recruiting meeting held on the Corso, Manly, last night. Mr. Dooley, M.L.A., and Mr. Storey, M.L.A., were the principal speakers.

Mr. Dooley, after his opening remarks, said that in his opinion the introduction of the conscription issue was a great blunder. (Interruption.) "I think it was wrong," proceeded Mr. Dooley, "and everybody knows full well that until the conscription idea was brought up the enlistments were enough to keep our men at the front up to and provide reinforcements for 100,000 men."

The chairman asked the speaker to eschew politics and confine himself to the subject of recruiting.

Mr. Dooley answered that he felt himself to be a judge of what was connected with recruiting and what was not. Interjections followed from the crowd after this for some minutes, and the chairman appealed for order. Then Mr. Dooley quoted the Director of Recruiting, Mr. Donald MacKinnon, a year or so ago, as saying that a huge mistake had been made in bringing up conscription. He had himself taken the trouble to get the recruiting figures from several of the metropolitan districts for the first six months after the recruiting ballot. The epithet cold footed might be applied to North Sydney with greater force than to Woolloomooloo, or Chippendale, or Redfern, and, moreover, the men in those places were all engaged in producing something that the country needed.

Mr. Storey said in 1915 we had in the Commonwealth 1,390,000 young men, including aliens or men of alien birth. Of those 1,290,000 were not aliens, and we had sent away 400,000 to the fighting line. (Dissent.) Taking others who had gone in other capacities nearly half the male population of eligibles had gone.

A woman's voice: Don't you want any more to go?

Mr. Storey: Yes; I will go myself if you will go with me. There was something more than living in a place and believing that everything was secure from attack while our boys over there were keeping the invader at bay. The Director-General of Recruiting, as Mr. Dooley had so pointed out in part of his speech, said that not enough married men had gone, and he could say to those to-night that if they enlisted their wives would be all right. This was a free country; the wives would be looked after. Of course, they were not looked after as he felt they should be; there were too few instances where the wives of men who had enlisted were visited and asked how they were faring, and whether they wanted anything or not; there was too little going to the houses of these women and talking with them. It was the duty of every man who did not go to the war to go out and do something in the way of getting others to go, and of helping those who were left behind. Among his friends some people said this was a capitalistic war, but he knew it was not—not at the beginning, at any rate. An Austrian prince was murdered by a Servian; Austria called upon Servia to make reparation, Russia told Austria that Servia was an ally of hers, Germany told Russia that Austria was an ally of hers, she went to war with Russia, and Germany passed through Belgium as the easiest way of getting into France, and then Great Britain had to go to war with Germany, because she was bound to do so by treaty. The English Foreign Minister and the Premier in the days prior to the war worked night and day to prevent hostilities, they did everything that could rightly and reasonably be done to prevent it, and only when Belgium was invaded did England draw the sword. (Applause.) He had said this at one of the Labour conferences. Now, after four years of war they saw people who were making such large profits out of the war that they cared little whether it ever ended or not. But did anybody blame Britain for refusing to give up until the invader was out of Belgium? Did anyone suggest that the war should stop until the German was out of every country he had invaded? Labour men had said they were not in favour of the war ending until full justice had been done to those nations which had been invaded, and to that doctrine he subscribed. (Applause.) He was not out to hinder recruiting; he was going to do all he could for it, and in everything the Government did that was honestly calculated to win the war he would be with them.

LAST WEEK'S ENLISTMENTS.

MELBOURNE, Tuesday.

The recruiting figures for New South Wales for last week had not been received by the Director-General of Recruiting (Mr. D. Mackinnon, M.L.A.) up to this afternoon. The returns from the other States were:—Queensland, [illegible] last week, 44 previous week; Victoria, 142 and 163; South Australia, 43 and 42; Western Australia, 30 and 33; Tasmania, 45 and 25.

COBARGO'S RECORD.

COBARGO, Tuesday.

The recruiting column arrived here yesterday. At night a recruiting appeal was made by Mr. McGarry, member for Murrumbidgee, also by Sergt. McFarland, and 20 recruits walked on the platform, being easily the largest enlistment during the march. The soldiers left for Bermagui this morning.

COUNTRY MARCHES.

ARMIDALE.—The March to Freedom reached Armidale, and was accorded a civic reception. The Chief Secretary, Mr. Fuller, M.L.A., briefly addressed the gathering.

CULCAIRN.—The South-western March to Freedom arrived at Culcairn accompanied by the Attorney-General, Mr. Hall, and Mr. Manning, M.L.A. Great success is atending the march, and at every centre recruits are forthcoming. At Ilabo eight recruits were secured.

KEMPSEY.—A big recruiting rally and concert were held at Victoria Hall by the North Coast route March to Freedom. Speeches were made by Warrant-officer M'Murtrie, Private Jackson, V.C., Sergeant Brown, Mr. Albert Bruntnell, and Mr. Harry Morton, Ms.L.A. Seven men volunteered, including a returned soldier.

The March to Freedom column, made up of 40 men from various branches, received a hearty welcome in Trangie. The school children, rifle club, and Progress Association met them at the station, and marched with them through the town. The Red Cross ladies entertained the soldiers to morning tea. In the afternoon the column was again formed at the station, and all marched to the music of the military band, to the recreation ground. Here addresses were delivered by various soldiers and Mr. Bennet, member for Durham. At night war films and speeches appealed for more recruits to fill the gaps. About six responded, two being returned soldiers who had already done their share and suffered.

WARREN, Tuesday.

The western march to freedom column arrived at Warren in pouring rain yesterday afternoon, and received an enthusiastic reception. Business houses were closed for the occasion, and, despite the rain and inches deep of mud on the streets and footpaths, the townspeople turned out en masse to receive the troops. At the Council-chambers the Mayor, Alderman Fish, gave them a civic welcome, and afterwards the visitors were entertained at dinner by the local Red Cross Society. A recruiting rally was held at night, and addresses were delivered by Lieut. Litchfield, Sergt. Howell, V.C., Gunner Bartlett, Sergt. Watkins, and Mr. W. Bennett, M.L.A. Of several men who offered two passed the medical test.

LATE MR. E. S. COX.

Mr. Edward Standish Cox, eldest son of the late Mr. E. K. Cox, M.L.C., of Fernhill, Mulgoa, died in Sydney on Sunday last. Up to the time he came to the city recently for medical treatment, the late Mr. Cox, who had reached his 63rd year, resided at Wagstaffe Point, Woy Woy. Several of the oldest personal friends of the deceased were among those who followed his remains to the Waverley Cemetery yesterday afternoon.

LATE MR. W. KEEN.

Probate has been granted of the will of the late Mr. William Keen, grazier, formerly of "Merol," near Moree, and of Randwick, who died at Randwick on July 4 last. The net value of his estate is £30,731/18/5, of which £18,905 is realty, and £11,495 shares. The testator devised his life policies and an annuity of £500 to his widow. The residue of the estate passes to his children.

UNITED CHURCHES

SERVICE AT TOWN HALL

WHY BRITAIN TOOK UP ARMS.

PROF. MACINTYRE'S FORCIBLE ADDRESS.

"We have suffered too much and endured too much to stay our hands until we have exacted reparation for the past and guaranteed the future."

Thus the Moderator-General of the Presbyterian Church (Professor Macintyre), at the united national intercession service at the Town Hall at midday yesterday, in connection with the anniversary of the war. The service was strikingly impressive, and was largely attended.

The Primate (Archbishop Wright) presided, others on the crowded platform including his Excellency the Governor (Sir Walter Davidson), attended by Captain Saltmarshe, A.D.C., the Moderator-General of the Presbyterian Church (Professor Macintyre), the Moderator of the N.S.W. Presbyterian Assembly (Rev. David Smith, M.A.), the President of the Methodist General Conference (Dr. Carruthers), the President of the N.S.W. Methodist Conference (Chaplain Green, C.M.G.), the chairman of the Congregational Union (Rev. N. J. Cocks, M.A.), the chairman of the Baptist Union (Mr. J. H. Burnet), Chaplain M'Kenzie, M.C., and other representatives of the Salvation Army, Bishop Pain, Dean Talbot, Dr. Roseby, Archdeacon Boyce, Canons Bellingham, Claydon, Charlton, and Canswick. Among others in the congregation were Lady Davidson, the Chief Justice and Lady Cullen, Mrs. Wright, Judge Backhouse, the Solicitor-General (Mr. Garland), the President of the Legislative Council (Mr. F. Flowers), and the Speaker of the Legislative Assembly (Mr. J. J. Cohen), accompanied by the Clerk of the Assembly (Mr. Mowle), and the Usher of the Black Rod (Mr. Clapin), the Chairman of Committees in the Legislative Assembly (Mr. D. Levy), Col. J. M. Macarthur Onslow, and other members of Parliament, the District Commandant (Brigadier-General Lee), and Mr. Maurice Gotthelf, as well as a number of V.A.D.'s in uniform.

The service included the hymns, "All People that on Earth," "O God Our Help," "Lord God of Hosts," a hymn in memory of the fallen, Jackson's Te Deum, and silent prayers for King and country, for our sailors and soldiers, and those of our Allies; for the sufferers in the war, the wounded, the sick, the missing, and prisoners; for those engaged in Red Cross work, and other war work; for steadfastness and courage, and for international understanding and friendship, and also invocatory prayer and prayer for national constancy. The proceedings concluded with the National Anthem and Benediction, a retiring collection being for the Red Cross and War Chest funds. The Primate, the chairman of the Congregational Union, the President-General and the President of the Methodist Conference, the Moderator-General and the Moderator of the Presbyterian Assembly, and the president of the Baptist Union joined in the conduct of the service.

THE POWER OF PRAYER.

In an address on "National Thanksgiving and Intercession," the Primate said that on Saturday they assembled in the hall to reaffirm their unflinching resolution to pursue the war to a victorious end because it was a struggle to maintain the ideal of justice and righteousness, which was the common and sacred cause of ourselves and our Allies. "To-day," he added, "we meet again as Christian citizens in order to carry out that affirmation by contributing what is absolutely essential to true victory—the power of united and constant prayer. We are one and undivided in the great principles and essentials of our faith. We believe that the Almighty power of God which sways the world can be moved in a marvellous manner by the effectual, fervent prayer of faithful men and faithful women. We pray to-day because we need prayer as we never needed it before in this critical moment of our Empire's destiny—when victory only hangs in the balance, and is not assured even yet, and when it is for all of us to pray. For what is it that we should pray? We should pray for one thing: That God will enable us to be a united and harmonious people, set upon one object only in the world—the establishment of righteousness. We should pray that God will cleanse us as a people of the evil in national life and in personal life that can defeat, and has often defeated, God's purpose." The Primate went on to say that we should thank God for the endless tokens of His love, which He had shown even during the horrors of war. We should thank Him for the courage with which He had enabled the men who were fighting for righteousness to fight on, and for the victories He had given us by sea and by land. Around the walls of that hall on Saturday were the names of places which would for ever be inseparably associated with Australia because of the part played by our men. Among them was Lone Pine, the anniversary of which notable engagement fell that day. These were all names that would be emblazoned on history's scroll as evidence of Australian valour, for which we thanked God.

THE COMMON TASK.

The Moderator-General of the Presbyterian Church (Professor Macintyre) took "National Consecration" as the subject of a forceful address. "There is" he said, "a time in every war, long continued, when we forget the high purpose with which we entered upon the task, and so are apt to grow faint and weary. We have, therefore, to remind ourselves afresh of what that purpose is which called us to this sacrifice, and so renew our consecration to the greater cause for which our flag was ever unfurled and our sword ever drawn. Putting aside the immediate occasion of the war, that purpose was the protection of the world against an outburst of barbarism, joined to the highest technical skill and combined with a ruthless disregard of every human right, which threatened to break down the bulwarks of civilisation, and to tyrannise over the world in an unbridled lust of power. That was a task we had to enter upon or be false to our own past and traitor to the world's future, and I say that that task must be accomplished before the dove of peace can alight upon the battlefields of Europe. We have suffered too much and endured too much to stay our hand till we have exacted reparation for the past and guaranteed the future. The defeat of Germany is not an end in itself, but the preliminary and necessary condition to a new age which will rescue the world from dynastic ambitions and military conquests, and make the world safe for democracy. It is our high calling to show that the weak shall be protected against the strong by the stronger, that justice has a more powerful backing than unholy greed, that the law of faith to a pledged word must be respected with scrupulous honour. To such a task we have dedicated our lives and our fortune, and for its accomplishment we trust in God, and in our unbroken army. But consecration to this high and worthy purpose implies concentration upon it till it be accomplished. This task is too great and too difficult to be taken up with the slack hand, or in odd moments from domestic affairs.

"No domestic, no class, and no national affairs are safe until the German beast be driven back to his lair. This is not the time for political intrigue, or party advantage, or industrial wrangling. Loyalty to this great cause ought not to have a price set upon it, and it is time we made clear that we will not traffic in loyalty, neither buy nor sell it.

"The loyal heart of Australia may plead with her sons, but it refuses to bargain with the enemy within her gates.

"We are out to rid the world of militarism, but let us not pharisaically conclude that this is the only evil we have to deal with. Are these men who have sailed from our shores risking all merely in order that we may be free to continue in our old ways? If this war leaves us where it found us it will leave us worse than we were, for then we shall have endured the sacrifice and missed the salvation. Is the land for which your sons have died to be for ever the slave of the drink traffic, the home of the gambler, and the victim of venereal disease? By the beloved dead who lie by the Aegean shore and beneath the soil of France, by the maimed and blind who move painfully along our streets, by the agony of anxiety and the tears of sorrow, it must not be, and it shall not be. The Australia which has been consecrated in the blood of her brave sons must be a land of more than political freedom—a land of purity and of righteousness. Fathers and mothers, leaders of the army, and leaders of the navy are appealing to the nation to save those whom war may spare. And the first to answer the appeal was our noble King, God bless him. For a moment it seemed as if the deliverance of the nation was at hand. But the King's Government has refused to follow the King. In the name of God, and on behalf of the men whose broken bodies are our redemption, I appeal for a drastic act of surgery that will cut out these cancers from the body of the nation. We are consecrate to the freedom of peace of the world because we are first consecrate to God. We are impressed with the conviction of danger. We must also be impressed with the conviction of sin. A nation saved at so great a price must be a purer and better nation. Our aim must rise to the measure of our sacrifice. Aye, the price is great, too great to falter or fail now. They who would counsel us to an unworthy peace are the enemies of peace, for it would mean only breathing time for another and greater war, while our resolution is 'never again.' To-day we are allied to win a world peace. In the future we shall be united to maintain it. In this great and deadly struggle our hearts go out in sympathy to and our prayers ascend for the burdened hearts and the sorrowing homes in our midst. There are many who to-day are bowed in an agony of anticipation, their Gethsemane. Many have passed on to Calvary, the place of sacrifice. But take courage and comfort, for behind the hill of Calvary the light of the Easter morn is already breaking—the day which will bring a new redemption to the world, and then even you, for whom the garments of sorrow have been woven by the hills of Judea and the plains of Flanders, will yet join in the triumphal song 'Peace on earth; good-will to men.'"

OTHER SERVICES.

Three well-attended services were held in the Pitt-street Congregational Church yesterday afternoon.

From 2 till 3 o'clock the Methodist Church and the Salvation Army combined, those who took part including the Rev. P. J. Stephen (ex-president of the Methodist Conference) and Major M'Kenzie, M.C.

During the second hour, clergymen attached to the Presbyterian and Baptist denominations conducted the service. The Rev. George Reid (Moderator of the Presbytery of Sydney) gave an address. He was assisted by Mr. J. H. Burnet (chairman of the Baptist Union.)

The service from 4 p.m. to 5 p.m. was presided over by Rev. C. A. Whyte, M.A. (Congregational) and Rev. Mr. Wheelan (Church of Christ). The Rev. N. J. Cocks, M.A. (Pitt-street Church), and other clergymen were present.

A combined intercession service of the Anglican, Presbyterian, Methodist, and Congregational Churches of South Sydney was held at 7.45 in Wesley Church, Regent-street, Redfern. Addresses were given by the Rev. E. L. Coulter, and by Archdeacon Boyce. There was an excellent congregation, the church being well filled, and the music, suited to the occasion, was spiritedly rendered by a large choir. Intercessory prayers were offered up, each of the various clergy taking part. For the subject of his address the Rev. E. L. Coulter took the one of "Thanksgiving." He said that we had every reason to be thankful. The Allies had suffered many reverses, but never an overwhelming disaster or defeat. Was not this a cause for general rejoicing? Later on Archdeacon Boyce addressed his hearers on the efficacy of prayer.

UNIVERSITY AND THE WAR.

ADDRESS BY CHANCELLOR.

At the University yesterday the Chancellor (Sir William Cullen) addressed the professors and undergraduates. He also inspected the men of the recently-formed Sydney University Company.

"Our own brave Australians," said the Chancellor, "have gone on adding to the lustre of the reputation which they gained on April 25, 1915. Those men do not need our praise. It is written in their hearts' blood on the soil of Europe, Africa, Asia, on the sea—wherever there is a man's work to be done. The people of this country are entitled to expect from a university such as this, not that it shall be a mere unconnected group or collection of individual teachers and students who have no common thought, no united thought beyond that which they could have had as well if they had never come to the University at all. You will not suppose that the materialistic aim of training a good lawyer, or doctor, or engineer, or other professional is what a university exists for, or that, when it has done its work in training good professional men and women, then its task is closed. I tell you as one who has had his own way to fight in the world, and who has gained some of what the world calls success, that I have no respect for a good lawyer more than I have for a good barber or butcher unless he is something more than that. I do not know that he is entitled to as much respect because we cannot do without butchers and hairdressers, but there are conceivable methods whereby we might do without lawyers, though not so conveniently. What I say about lawyers I even venture to say about doctors.

"We have many who put material advantages first," Sir William went on, "and to a young man of about 20 what is his great hurry to get at his profession? I speak as one experienced, not as one who cannot sympathise with the most penniless man whom it is the honour of the university to have attracted to its classes. It was long after that age that I got the opportunity of attending a university at all. It was many years after that before I was in a position to enter professional life, and it is not for want of understanding—it is not for want of deep sympathy with every struggling student, that I say you men of 20 or 21 have something that we older men envy in our hearts at this crisis of the world's history. You have the inestimable blessing of youth and vigour and courage, and your nerves have not been depressed by the struggles of life. When you find Lord Lansdowne or anyone else talking to you about the horrors of war and the dangers of militarism, and what it is the nation should guard against when this war is over, do you find one word which says my own countrymen were dragged into this, and in it they have kept their hands clean? I have not seen it, and when I find a pacificist who starts in that straight-forward, truthful, honest fashion, and then hammers in his points with reason, I will be more inclined to listen to him.

"In the days of the future," he concluded, "it may be that reason and justice will commend themselves without any appeal to arms and the horrors of warfare, but meanwhile the burglar is in the house. There is only one way to get him out, and that is the revolver. Meanwhile, those whose hearts are set on militarism have been near often and often to triumph, and we do not know what the end of it will be, but we do know this: that if we stand heart to heart and shoulder to shoulder, and say we shall be of Australia, and we shall be of Australian universities, never fear but that the future will be a bright day for you."

PATRIOTIC RALLY AT RANDWICK.

With the object of emphasising a determination to assist in carrying the war to a successful conclusion, a large number of Randwick residents assembled last night at the local Town Hall. The Mayor, Alderman H. Goldstein, presided.

In moving the first resolution, Mr. W. H. Kelly, M.P., said that everybody felt that a repetition of the crime by Germany in plunging the whole world into the bloodiest war in history must be prevented at all costs. The Prussian military autocracy that held life and human liberty of no account must be crushed. Unfortunately there were people in Australia who, like some in Russia, said that the Germans have been misunderstood. The world had seen what that meant. But would Australia and the rest of the British Empire, which is composed of such intelligent people, fall into a trap as the Russians had done? Germany had committed a stupid and callous crime, but it had the immediate effect of bringing England to her senses. Their loyalty to France demanded that she shall not be exposed to another attack; and without the friendship of France the British Empire could not exist.

Mr. David Storey, M.L.A., in seconding the resolution, said he could not understand the pacificists, who wanted to shake Germany by the hand and say, "Let bygones be bygones." The battle cry of American was "Lusitania," and now that President Wilson has declared to fight through, let no man in the Empire cry enough till the German hosts were driven into the Rhine.

Other speakers followed, and the resolutions were unanimously and enthusiastically adopted:—

(1.) "That on fourth anniversary of the declaration of a righteous war this meeting of citizens of Randwick records once more its inflexible determination to continue to a victorious end the struggle to maintain that ideal of liberty and justice which is the common and sacred cause of the Allies."

(2.) "That this meeting will use every endeavour in raising the necessary men and money to do its share to carry into effect the previous resolution."

OPPOSED TO STRIKES.

MASTERS AND ENGINEERS.

Mr. Allen, secretary to the Federated Masters and Engineers' Association, has just returned to Sydney after a visit to Victoria and South Australia. He said yesterday that meetings of members of the association had been held in the two States, when it was decided to take another ballot on the question of amalgamating with the Merchant Service Guild. Mr. Allen added that the organisation had decided not to take part in strikes. He had been instructed to take proceedings against a number of shipowners who, it was alleged, were not complying with the terms of the deep-sea engineers' award.

OBSOLETE LAWS.

CONVEYANCING AND PROPERTY.

SCOPE OF NEW BILL.

The subject of conveyancing and the law of property generally has been in a very backward state in New South Wales up to the present, especially so far as conveyancing is concerned, in reference to lands not under the Real Property Act. As regards the general law of property the statement applies equally to all land, whether under the old system or under the Real Property Act. In England, there has been a constant succession of amendments of the law of real property, the first big amending Act being that of 1845. This was followed periodically by small amending Acts, until the comprehensive Conveyancing Act, of 1881, was passed by the Imperial Legislature.

The last-named Act, and prior amending Acts, affecting many improvements in the direction of simplifying transactions with land, and also the law of property, particularly the law of property in land, have from time to time been adopted by all the other States of the Commonwealth, except New South Wales.

Recognising the obsolete condition of the law here, a tentative bill was drafted and presented to Parliament last year with the object of modernising the Statutes operating in N.S.W., and by resolution of the Houses the Draft Bill was remitted to Mr. Justice Harvey as a Royal Commission to consider the whole subject and return the bill with such amendments as might be suggested as the result of his investigations.

The matter has now been under consideration by the Commissioner for some months. Criticisms and suggestions on the bill have been received from the Council of the Bar, the Law Institute, the Crown Solicitor, many independent solicitors both in the city and the country; from the examiners of titles under the Real Property Act, and others. The surveyors in N.S.W. have also made recommendations as to provision for the registration of subdivision plans.

Although the work of the Commission is not yet completed, the bill has been re-drafted to such an extent as affords a general idea of its final character. It will aim at the simplification of the mode of dealing with old system lands, and will propose general amendments of the law of property, principally in lands.

It will be founded very largely upon the principle of the English Conveyancing Acts, 1881-1913. In this respect it will not affect land under the Real Property system, but in so far as it amends the general law which applies to land under both systems, it has been found necessary to mould the Real Property system accordingly.

While the subject is a very wide one, and only a few of the matters which are dealt with can now be mentioned, these include the following:—

A provision for the assignment of debts and choses in action.

Simplification of many of the present estates and interests in land.

The abolition of estates tail, these being converted into estates in fee simple.

Simplification of dealings between husband and wife in reference to land; and by a person with himself and others.

Provision for joint tenancy in land between a corporation and a natural person.

A clear definition of the persons to take, where a gift is made to the heirs or heirs of the body of any person.

A provision, modifying and making good certain dispositions now voided for remoteness.

Simplification of the execution of deeds.

The abolition of technical words of limitation in deeds, so as to effectuate the intention of the parties.

A general definition and simplification of the rights of vendor and purchaser of land, and of mortgagee and lessee.

The provisions of the English Acts, which imply covenants for title by the use of such words as "convey as beneficial owner," are adopted, and certain covenants are also implied in leases and mortgages without special words.

The bill proposes to confer power on the Court to discharge or modify restrictions on the use of land, where, by reason of changes in the character of the neighbourhood or otherwise, such restrictions have become unreasonable.

Various Acts relating to leases and the forfeiture of leases will be consolidated, and also many of the provisions which affect land, such as the apportionment of rent charges on land for the discharge of mortgages, rent, charges, etc.

Powers of attorney will also be dealt with; likewise execution of documents abroad, and the registration of instruments. Under this part of the measure registers of writs and orders affecting land and pending causes will be established. This also relates to bankruptcy proceedings. Under the rules proposed here all charges upon land imposed under statutory provisions or orders of the Court, or writs of execution, otherwise than by way of rates or taxes, will be required to be registered at the Registrar-General's office. It will thus become necessary to search only in one department to ascertain encumbrances on title. In this part of the bill, also, a provision is made for procuring an official search to be made in the Registrar-General's office, the result of which will protect the person who gets it.

The bill establishes an expert committee to settle and promulgate short forms of legal documents for general use.

The bill finally deals with the subject of solicitors' remuneration, and as to this adopts the provisions of the English Act of 1881.

The whole measure will come again before Parliament, with a report from the Commissioner, when no doubt its details will be open to discussion. So far it has had a very full discussion by experts, and it is safe to say that no other measure has undergone such close and careful scrutiny in New South Wales. Many of the suggestions, which have been sent in, have been adopted in whole or in part, and in some other respects the scope of the bill has been enlarged. It may be said, in conclusion, that there is nothing revolutionary in any of the powers proposed to be conferred by the bill, but that its general result should be greatly to simplify the law.

V.C.'S ROMANCE.

WEDDING OF CAPTAIN GRIEVE.

Captain Robert Grieve and a Red Cross nurse, Sister Isabel Bowman, of Mosman, are to be married at Scots' Church at 4 o'clock this afternoon. The wedding is a romance of the war.

Captain Grieve, whose home is at Brighton, Victoria, won his V.C. at Messines last year. Showing utter disregard of danger, after all the officers had been wounded, and the company had suffered very heavy casualties, he located two machine guns in pill-boxes, and himself bombed and killed the gunners. He reorganised the remnants of the company, and continued to advance until the objective had been reached. He fell wounded, but not until the position had been secured and the enemy was in full flight. The episode is one of the outstanding features in the bright annals of the Australians' valorous deeds.

When he had recovered from his wounds he went back to the fighting line, and before he should have done, for a grave attack of double pneumonia immediately followed. For three days and three nights his life hung trembling in the balance, and but for the tender care and watchfulness of the nurse who to-day is to become his wife the little vitality that remained would probably have ebbed away. It was she who saved him, and nursed him back to health and strength.

When Captain Grieve was invalided to Australia he applied for the discharge of his fiancee, and she arrived home quite recently.

STATE PARLIAMENT.

TO RESUME NEXT TUESDAY.

Both Houses of the State Parliament will resume the work of the session which was interrupted on account of the recruiting campaign next week. Members of the Legislative Assembly are being called together for Tuesday next at the usual hour, 4.30 p.m.

The first business will be the bill to extend the powers of royal commissioners, in order to give to the Judge who will conduct the I.W.W. inquiry much greater powers to compel the production of evidence. Mr. Justice Gordon will probably be asked to accept this commission. Immediately after this has been got out of the way it is expected that the Premier and Treasurer, Mr. Holman, will be prepared to deliver the annual budget speech and lay the Estimates on the table. The sessional programme, which is charged with a large number of important measures, is expected to occupy Parliament until well on to the end of the year, probably the last week of November. In all probability there will be a meeting of the National party on Monday or Tuesday next.

THE RACEHORSE ETAL.

BRISBANE, Tuesday.

No true bill has been filed in the case of Berry, who had been committed for trial on a charge of doing grievous harm to the racehorse Etal.

TRADES CONGRESS.

PRIVATE AND STATE OWNERSHIP DENOUNCED.

CLASS WAR ADVOCATED.

The New South Wales Trade Union Congress yesterday discussed various schemes for the reorganisation of the trade unions.

The following preamble was adopted. Eighty-three delegates voted in favour and nine against. Three delegates did not vote:—

We hold that there is a class struggle in society, and that the struggle is caused by the capitalist class owning the means of production, to which the working-class must have access in order to live. The working-class produce all value. The greater the share which the capitalist class appropriates the less remains for the working-class, therefore the interests of these two classes are in constant conflict. There can be no peace as long as hunger and want are found among millions of working people, and the few who constitute the employing class have all the good things of life. Between these two classes the struggle must continue until capitalism is abolished. Capitalism can only be abolished by the workers uniting in one class-conscious economic organisation to take and hold the means of production by revolutionary industrial and political action. Revolutionary action means action to secure a complete change; namely the abolition of capitalist class-ownership of the means of production, whether privately or through the State, and the establishment in its place of social ownership by the whole community. Long experience has proved the hopeless futility of existing political and industrial methods, which aim at mending and rendering tolerable and thereby perpetuating capitalism—instead of ending it. The rapid accumulation of wealth and concentration of the ownership of industries into fewer and fewer hands make the trade unions unable to cope with the ever-growing power of the employing class, because craft unionism fosters conditions which allow the employers to pit one set of workers against another set of workers in the same industry, thereby defeating each in turn. These conditions can be changed and the interests of the working class advanced only by an organisation so constituted that all its members in any one industry or in all industries shall take concerted action when deemed necessary, thereby making an injury to one the concern of all. We hold that as the working-class creates and operates the socially-operated machinery of production it should direct production and determine working conditions.

The following committee was appointed to draw up a constitution based upon the preamble adopted:—Messrs. Rutherford (Saddlers' Union), Kilburn (Bricklayers), A. Rae (A.W.U.), George Burns (Hotel, Club employees), Judd (Labour Council), Conway (Coal-lumpers), Sinclair (Boilermakers), Nielsen (Coachmakers), W. Morby (Furniture Trades), Lenehan (Progressive Carpenters), A. C. Willis (chairman of Congress), and Garden (secretary).

The conference adjourned till 10 o'clock this morning.

CHURCH AND LABOUR.

WELLINGTON (N.Z.), Tuesday.

With a view to clearing mutual misunderstandings between the Church and Labour, the Wellington Methodists have arranged to confer with the local Labour representation committee.

ALLEGED THEFT OF JEWELLERY.

MELBOURNE, Tuesday.

In the Court of General Sessions to-day, before Justice Wasley, Matthew Daly and John Dean, charged with having on June 14 stolen from Kilpatrick's jewellery establishment gold and diamond rings valued at between £1500 and £1600, were found not guilty, and were discharged.

TOWN-PLANNING CONFERENCE.

BRISBANE, Tuesday.

The Town-planning Conference was concluded to-day. A paper on the methods of financing town-planning by Mr. E. M. Stephens (Sydney) was read in his absence by Mr. W. Layton (Sydney). Its scope was limited to the question of financing resumption schemes undertaken with a view to improving the planning of the existing city areas. Several delegates regretted the paper did not go to the bottom of the question upon which it purported to throw light. Several motions were carried dealing with compensation for land.

AUSTRALIAN PROMOTED.

The Rev. T. and Mrs. Morgan, of Strathfield, have received information that their son, Capt. Idris Morgan, of the A.A.M.C., has been promoted to the rank of major. He has been on active service for three years, and was mentioned in despatches after Bullecourt. He was severely wounded at Ypres, when attached to a battalion as regimental medical officer.

FEDERAL OFFICIAL FOR INDIA.

MELBOURNE, Tuesday.

The Government apparently holds the view that as it has purchased cornsacks for Australian requirements during the coming season, it is deemed necessary to create an official position by appointing a representative to watch its interests in Calcutta. For this purpose a Melbourne jute broker is to leave for India immediately, but it is not stated what his duties will be.

FATHER O'REILLY'S SPEECH.

TO THE EDITOR OF THE HERALD.

Sir,—Father O'Reilly's last letter is a very serious misrepresentation of the course of this controversy. He says that all that he has contended is that Protestants, while charging Rome with being unscriptural, "are on their own showing unscriptural themselves." He proceeds: "This situation Dr. Radford resolutely refuses to face." Now, whatever Father O'Reilly may choose to say, readers of this correspondence know very well that I have resolutely faced this situation in letter after letter. Father O'Reilly now asks me to do him or the public the favour of dealing with the question of Lord Halifax and Bishop Hensley Henson and their differences. There will be time enough to deal with this or any other question which Father O'Reilly cleverly raises at an increasing distance from the original issue when he has faced the challenge of the original situation. More than a month ago he went out of his way to make a wanton and reckless attack on non-Roman Christianity. He asserted that "outside the Catholic Church religion was dying," and prophesied that in forty years there would be nothing but "Catholicism" on one side and various forms of unbelief on the other. In reply to this gratuitous insult, which was resented by decent members of his own communion, I asserted that "the permanence and progress of a church depended on its scriptural teaching, on its historical truthfulness, on its spiritual ideals, on its recognition of the purpose of God in the evolution of humanity," both in national life and in scientific thought. "Rome" had departed from scriptural standard of doctrine. For example, the whole structure of doctrine erected round the Blessed Virgin was in clean contrast with her place in Holy Writ. Father O'Reilly's only answer to this test has been to ring the changes on the differences within non-Roman Christianity, with what success your readers know. To the other tests he has made no answer whatever. It remains for your readers to draw their own conclusions as to the question, who is resolutely refusing to face the situation.

I am, etc., LEWIS GOULBURN.

Bishopthorpe, Goulburn, Aug. 5th.

TO THE EDITOR OF THE HERALD.

Sir,—The Bishop of Goulburn of course needs no assistance in his interesting controversy with Father O'Reilly, but, in view of the line of argument the latter now adopts, it may not be amiss for a layman of the Church of England to express himself briefly, because we are represented as being without authority or true guidance from our leaders, of whom the Bishop is one. I would like to tell Father O'Reilly that we of the laity take our doctrine from the three Catholic Creeds and the formularies of our Church, which formally and officially has disclaimed any intention of departing from any established practice or doctrine of the Church of England, "or, indeed, of the whole Catholic Church of Christ." The speculations of Dr. Sanday or the Bishop of Hereford do not affect the doctrine and practice of the Church of England any more than the speculations of Father Tyrell and the Modernists affect the doctrine and practice of the Roman Catholic part of the Church. The difference between us seems to be that Rome gets rid of such speculations by the simple but effective process of ejecting them from within her borders, but they are not thereby ended. We are patient of all honest speculation (perhaps too patient sometimes), and do not regard every essay by individuals after new light which they may feel they need, or the world may need, as shaking the old faith and formularies. We know all the time "Magna est veritas et prævalebit," and many a man, like Chesterton, will find by devious paths the truth which all the time he might have learned at his parish church or in his catechism. There is perhaps something between the two methods which would be ideal, but, if one must choose, I think I prefer ours.

The argument from the number of sects, as used by Father O'Reilly, always appears to me a dangerous one. Because you only have to carry the argument one step further back to find, on her own showing, that Rome produced all the "sects," as she produced Luther, Cranmer, and the Modernists. I am, etc.,

MEAT SUPPLIES.

PACKERS IDLE.

Mr. Carson, secretary to the Meat Packing and Tin-canning Employees' Union, stated yesterday that over 500 employees of that organisation had been rendered idle owing to short supplies of meat. If the shortage continued the number of men unemployed would be greatly increased. The majority of the men at present idle had been engaged on Imperial orders.

RETAILERS AS CARCASE BUTCHERS.

No fewer than nine retail butchers had stock purchased by them killed at Homebush abattoirs yesterday. They are what is known as small men in the trade, and it is stated that several of them may combine for the purchase of stock at the saleyards, and enter into a co-operative slaughtering arrangement. There are, it is understood, three or four carcase butchers operating at the abattoirs prepared to slaughter for members of the trade at reasonable rates, and to deliver the meat at the shop door if required. Asked yesterday whether the Metropolitan Meat Board would undertake the slaughter of stock for small butchers, the chairman of the board, Mr. G. H. King, said it would do so, provided a certain amount of continuity of supply was promised.

POSTPONEMENT URGED.

Mr. R. M. Pitt, of the firm of Pitt, Son, and Badgery, in a letter to Mr. W. Massy Greene, Minister in charge of Price Fixing, suggests that before the Meat Commission returns to Melbourne an inquiry be held into the reason of the present abnormal shortage of fat cattle and sheep in this State, and as to whether the prices fixed for dead meat will attract any fat cattle from Queensland, in view of what owners are obtaining there from the export companies. Mr. Pitt says his idea is first to ascertain the true economic position as regards supplies, and when this is ascertained he is sure it will be found that these are not available, and would not be available under any circumstances now that rain has fallen in the dry districts. It would, he says, be an economic waste to force stock in for slaughter before they are fat, which will be necessary if the price-fixing is enforced. He asks the Minister to consider the wisdom of postponing the operations of the Act to January 1 next, to permit of stock getting fat.

No one, Mr. Pitt adds, can object to the prices, provided there are full supplies, which look like a certainty by the end of the year.

COUNTRY PRICES.

"Puzzled" writes:—

I think some further light is required on country meat prices. The butchers here assert that Gulgong district is not included in the proclaimed area. To-day my butcher charged me 10d per lb for rib joint; still he has raised rump steak to proclaimed price.

Inquiry at the Sydney office of the Price-fixing Commission shows that Gulgong is included in a proclaimed area. In the list of prices issued by the Commonwealth Government there is a long list of proclaimed areas specified by name, then a further dragnet schedule applies to "all other proclaimed areas in the State of New South Wales other than those enumerated above." The prices chargeable in those "all other proclaimed areas" are—best ribs (beef) 8d, back rib (with bone) 7d, back rib (without bone) 9d. There is, however, a saving clause, which states that in areas other than the metropolitan area, where freight has been paid by the retailer, which is in effect an addition to the fixed wholesale price, a proportionate amount may be added to the retail prices, but such addition shall be as nearly as possible equally distributed over all joints and cuts.

TONIC SOL-FA.

Mr. James Chalmers, presiding at the inaugural meeting last night of the Tonic Sol-Fa Association of New South Wales, said since the Minister for Education, Mr. James, received a deputation of supporters of the Tonic Sol-Fa system he had announced publicly that he believed the people were with him in abolishing the system which he described as "so much la la la." (Laughter.) "What are we to think of a Minister for Education who ignores the fact that Tonic Sol-fa is being taught in most British schools and colleges, including the Royal Academy of Music, the finest school of music in the world, and that it has the support of the greatest English musicians of to-day?" continued the speaker. Are we to consider the people of every other part of the British Empire as so many fools, and that the music publishers are so blind to their own interests as to issue practically all choral compositions in the Tonic Sol-fa? Would Novello and Chappell publish all the oratorios in the Tonic Sol-fa if demand did not exist? Yet the Minister contemptuously refers to the Tonic Sol-fa as "so much la la la!"

Mr. John Byatt, representative in Australia of the Tonic Sol-fa College, London, delivered an address, in which he quoted authorities and statistics to show the wide popularity of the sol-fa system. Even among the missionaries in India, Papua, Tonga, Fiji, and other parts of the Pacific, the system was winning through. Slowly, but surely, the music profession at home was beginning to see the beauty, truth, and simplicity of the system. (Cheers.)

EMPLOYEES' PLEDGE.

The employees of Elliott Brothers, Ltd., at a meeting at noon on Monday, in the showroom, at the O'Connell-street warehouse, to commemorate the anniversary of the war, declared by resolution their unshaken faith in the righteousness of the cause of the Allies, and confidence in the final triumph of our armies. They further pledged themselves to do all in their power to help to win the war, and to assist those of their fellow-workers who have enlisted or who may enlist. It was stated that the employees had subscribed £6629/6/3 for patriotic purposes, and had a special fund of £410 to assist any employees who returned from the war incapacitated. Owing to the liberality of the directors, the employees had been enabled to place £11,000 in the war loan.

The chairman of the board of directors (Dr. Elliott), who presided, delivered an address, in which he pictured, from his own experience in Germany, what life would be in Australia if the Germans were to be the conquerors in the war. He asked his hearers to imagine how they would like to experience such treatment, hence the urgency of the appeal for all to do their share to help onward the cause of the Allies.

A.I.F. MEMORIAL.

Additional amounts received in connection with A.I.F. Day yesterday brought the total to £21,662/15/6, made up as follows: Subscriptions, £11,579; city collections, £18,546/16/3; suburban collections, £1536/19/3.

Amongst the visitors at the head office in Dalton House during the day was a child named Dorothy Howard, the daughter of an original Anzac, who paid in £1/6/, which she had industriously collected amongst her playmates.

The collections at Newtown amounted to £560, including £256 raised by the Matron (Mrs. Matthews) and nurses of South Sydney Hospital. Receipts from raffles have yet to be added.

POST-WAR QUESTIONS.

MR. BEEBY'S ATTITUDE.

Replying yesterday to the letter in that day's "Herald" by Mr. Weaver, M.L.A., Mr. Beeby, Minister for Labour and Industry, said:—"I cannot contest any of the statements made by Mr. Weaver in his reply to my remarks on the threatened trade war and Germany's future place in the world's colonisation. I think Mr. Weaver overlooked the purpose of my statement. All I am urging is that this is not the time for Australia to be definitely committed by its Prime Minister to a predetermined policy on future international relationships. The securing of a peace which carries with it the destruction of aggressive militarism is not being forwarded by beforehand notice to enemy nations that after military defeat they must face an era of economic war, and that they will be excluded from future participation in the world's raw products. The only way to bring this war to an early conclusion is by divorcing the German people from their militaristic government. Threats of a continuation of war in another sphere only tend to solidify enemy races. I still contend that the Prime Minister should not take part in a political campaign in Great Britain which gives the German military leaders what they need so desperately—fresh material for use in keeping their people united.

"The Germans as a race still believe that they were not the attacking nation, and that they are resisting a world-wide conspiracy to destroy their national existence, and nothing is more useful to the German Emperor just now than announcements by responsible Empire statesmen of a trade war which is to be continued after military victory. If the war is fought to a dead finish all that Mr. Hughes is advocating may be insisted upon in order that civilisation may be safeguarded in the future from the horrors of militarism. But it is still possible that the German people, as distinct from their Government, may awake to an understanding of the real cause of the war. If they do, then peace negotiations, I submit, should not be hampered by premature announcements on issues, many of which must ultimately be determined at a peace conference.

"The President of the United States and the American Congress are not committing themselves to any of these post-war ultimatums. The Canadian Premier has openly criticised some of them. Mr. Lloyd George and his colleagues, although supporting every practical movement toward Empire solidarity and future co-operation with the Allies, have not definitely committed themselves to many matters on which Mr. Hughes is so emphatic. They know too well that no nation can at present commit itself to relationships which will arise after the war, and they know also that the Northcliffe campaign, in which Mr. Hughes has become entangled, is not inspired by war sentiment. The ultimate future of Germany's colonies is not as important as an early possible achievement of a lasting peace.

"In spite of criticism, I still urge that Australia has an open mind on this question, and is prepared to leave it open until the final balancing takes place—that Australia is prepared to say: 'We don't care what becomes of the conquered colonies, so long as the final peace terms prevent Prussian militarism from ever again deluging the world with blood and tears.'"

STATE MINISTERS.

Seven members of the State Ministry are out of town. The Premier (Mr. Holman) has been away since the week-end. He is spending a few days on the Mountains, where he is engaged in giving the departmental estimates of expenditure a further close scrutiny before making his annual Budget speech to Parliament. Mr. Fuller, Chief Secretary, and Mr. Hall, Attorney-General, are both in the country taking part in the recruiting campaign; Mr. Fitzgerald, Minister for Health and Local Government, is in Brisbane attending the conference of the Town-planning Association; Mr. Ashford, who has been in very indifferent health, has been forced to take a holiday, and will probably be out of town for about three weeks; Mr. Beeby, Minister for Labour and Industry, has sufficiently recovered from his illness to spend a few hours every day at his office; Mr. Ball, Minister for Works and Railways, left Sydney last night for Condobolin. He will return on Monday next.

PATRIOTIC WOMEN.

MELBOURNE, Tuesday.

The Women's Army Auxiliary Corps and the Women's Service Corps of Australia have been seeking avenues for activity in national service in Great Britain and France for some time past, but the Imperial Government has not been favourable to the proposal, as ample numbers of women are available on the spot for war work. The Government recently asked the High Commissioner, Mr. Fisher, to ascertain the present view of the British authorities, and to-day received the following reply: "Offer of service from volunteer women in Australia strongly represented to Imperial Government, who reply that the patriotic motives inspiring the appeal are greatly appreciated, but the present situation does not justify the adoption of the proposal."

AUSTRALIAN PRISONERS.

CRUEL TREATMENT IN GERMANY.

BATHURST, Tuesday.

Corporal F. Everett, a Queenslander, one of the exchanged prisoners now in Holland, writing to a Bathurst resident, states: "You will never know what our boys have suffered at the hands of Germany. Sooner than be taken prisoner again I would shoot myself in the trenches. Not only did they starve us, but their cruelty to us is beyond description, and there are many of our poor boys being foully murdered in Germany. If it had not been that the English Government sent us food parcels every week I am afraid there would have been very few of us left to tell the tale about that cursed country."

AUSTRALIAN HONOURED.

Mrs. S. Long, of West-street, North Sydney, has been officially notified that her son, Pte. C. J. A. Long, has been awarded the Military Medal for conspicuous gallantry in the field. He has been serving in France for two years, was wounded once, and was twice absent from the firing line through illness. He was educated at the Marist Brothers' School, North Sydney, and is 23 years of age. An elder brother, Patrick, was killed in action in France early in the year.

MOTORISTS' PROTEST.

MELBOURNE, Tuesday.

The committee of the Motorists' Defence League met at the rooms of the Royal Automobile Club, to consider the form of protest to be made against the suggested increase in license fees and taxation, and the infliction of further repressive legislation. It was decided that the Cabinet and all members of Parliament be communicated with, and made aware of the strong opposition existing to the proposals, and that all motorists in the State be canvassed to sign a form of protest to be presented to the Government.

AUSTRALIAN WEATHER.

THE "HERALD" MAP.

The chart is of unusual interest, in that it not only depicts three disturbances of cyclonic character over the southern shores of the continent, but also illustrates the antithesis of the pressure distribution, which became so familiar whilst the dry conditions were so pronounced. These disturbances are the product of the great tropical surge southward, and the one manifesting such intensity over the south-eastern States has so far resulted in the best rains this year over New South Wales. It may now be more definitely stated than hitherto that the rain received since July 20 has been responsible at least for the return to the normal, as regards the pastoral and agricultural outlook. The centre of the disturbance operating over New South Wales (to the value of 29.2 inches) is now situated to the south-east of Gabo, and its northern isobars should be responsible for further unsettled conditions generally, with scattered rains, but shortly clearing to the ENE, and becoming finer with lowering temperatures, and strong and squally W to SW winds. Snow is also probable on the central and southern tablelands. The other cyclonic disturbances are centred to the south of Esperance, and to the SW of The Leeuwin respectively, but are much smaller than the one to the east. The weather is generally unsettled in W.A., south of the Tropic. Tropical Australia is for the most part under high pressure influence, and consequently the weather there is mostly fine. Relatively high pressure is also in evidence over the Great Southern Ocean, between the tropical disturbances and Antarctic farther south, and over New Zealand. Present indications favour further unsettled weather almost generally, with scattered rains and some thunder, but shortly contracting to the NE, and becoming finer generally, with lowering temperatures. Strong and squally WSW winds are also indicated, and snow probable on central and southern tablelands.

Ocean Forecast.—Westerly gales around Leeuwin; W to S gales on N.S.W. coast. Elsewhere smooth to moderate.

J. C. LUDOWICI AND SON, LTD.

The report of J. C. Ludowici and Son, Ltd., for the half-year ended June 30 shows a net profit of £3134. It is proposed to declare a dividend at the rate of 10 per cent. per annum, absorbing £2832, and to transfer the balance, £302, to the reserve fund. As a result of the benefits derived since the inauguration some time ago of the bonus system, it has been decided to extend the system so as to embrace all the employees of the company. It is believed that it will result in material and lasting benefit to both shareholders and employees, whose interests are mutual, and should be fostered in every possible way. An employees' superannuation fund has been established. The idea is to provide retiring allowances for all employees who, on account of ill-health or advancing years, are no longer able to earn a livelihood. This fund will be added to as circumstances permit. The majority of the company's employees has taken advantage of the inducements offered to them to invest in war loans. This policy will be continued, and it is felt that the concessions being granted will tend to foster a better spirit among employees, eliminating, or at least minimising, that element of restlessness which has existed in the past, and making for increased efficiency. The following comparison of the principal items of the balance-sheet may be made:—

	Half-year ended June 30, 1916.	1917.	1918.

COMMERCIAL.

THE MARKETS.

Oil merchants held firmly to their stocks yesterday, and refused to accept orders other than at full late rates. No. 1 pure Fook Cheong China oil was quoted at 12/, and No. 2 at 11/ a gallon, in cases. The high rate of 14/ was again asked for castor oil. Japanese fish oil brought 6/3, and cod oil 6/6, while up to 20/ was paid for the best brands of cotton seed oil. Sales of rosin oil were made at from £48 to £50 a ton. There was a steady inquiry for wool-marking oils. Australian black changed hands at 4/6 and coloured at 6/6 a gallon. Leading imported brands commanded to 10/. For Australian-made blowfly oil 4/6 was wanted. Paint materials were in strong hands. Linseed oil and whitelead were available at the proclaimed prices, and turpentine was offered at from 5/10 to 6/, according to the size of the parcel.

The demand for all lines of imported groceries continued strong, and prices were well maintained. American tinned herrings were freely asked for, and good sales of fresh were made at from 12/ to 12/6. For kippered up to 14/6 was obtained. Salmon was quiet, but firm. Tinned and dried fruits were dull. Amongst Eastern produce tapioca cleared well, medium pearl at 22/ and seed at 21/ per cwt. Locally-cleaned rice was also in request at from £23/10/ to £26/10/ a ton.

Messrs. Mailler and Quereau have received a letter from Mr. Thomas Sealy, one of the largest dealers in turpentine and rosin in America, which states that all purchases of rosin and turpentine must be subject to delays or even cancellation, as the Government reserves the right to take off steamers or railroad cars as it sees fit. Merchants are therefore helpless, and have had purchases of over 30,000 barrels cancelled lately. Messrs. Mailler and Quereau are also in receipt of a letter from their principals, which states that the rosin market has taken another turn, and now the Government is talking of reducing the output 50 per cent. on account of the scarcity in labour and the necessity for more labour in shipbuilding. If such a course is pursued by the Government it will mean only a very limited supply, and prices may jump up very rapidly for both rosin and turpentine.

VEGETABLE MARKET.

The market for vegetables was again slow yesterday, and agents experienced considerable difficulty in clearing their floors. Owing to the arrival of fairly large consignments, cabbages and cauliflowers were cheaper. During the past few days there has been an influx of Swede turnips, and the market is over-supplied. Prices dropped 1/ per cwt. Choice peas remained firm at 14/ a bushel.

PIG SALES.

A heavy supply of 3632 pigs was forward at the abattoir saleyards yesterday. These comprised all descriptions, including a fair sprinkling of inland pigs. The general quality of the offering was fairly good. The usual buyers were in attendance, and operated at about late rates for prime backfatters, but rough sorts were cheaper. The demand for porkers, considering the heavy supply forward, was good, as, although the market was cheaper, it was still dear. Values were fluctuating for baconers, and generally were slightly in buyers' favour.

Prime backfatters made to £8/10/, good to £7, rough sorts from 70/; prime weighty baconers made to 88/ (odd higher), good to 78/; prime heavy porkers made to 60/ (odd higher), good to 52/; prime light sorts to 45/.

MINING.

Extraordinary activity prevailed in the market for mining shares on the Stock Exchange yesterday, and the day's operations, so far as listed sales were concerned, constituted the largest number of separate sales of this decade. The present conditions, abnormal in many respects, may be held responsible. The restriction on new company flotations accounts for a surplus of money which, under ordinary circumstances, would be invested in new concerns, but now re-enters the market for purposes of speculation or investment. The high prices of Broken Hill stocks, though warranted by increased profits, is somewhat attributable to this state of affairs. The chaos of freight and shipping, together with the uncertain market, has accounted for a novel position in connection with tin. While tin is at the unprecedented rate of £394/10/ in London, Sydney buyers are paying at least £20 to £30 in advance of that rate. Thus a turnover similar to that of yesterday is not without causes.

Considerable interest attached to tin stocks, particularly local concerns. Vegetable Creek literally boomed, and in 30 listed sales the stock advanced to 2/4 and 13/1, but closed at 12/1½. This company is in a position to pay at least /6 per month in dividends, and reports a steady output of 5 tons of tin oxide per week. Some operators consider that the company is operating on a body of wash, the dimensions and continuance of which is a matter for speculation. Carpathias are also favoured, and both classes of scrip closed 1/3 higher at 24/3 and 23/6 for paid and contributing respectively. Pond's Creek advanced /6 to 6/6, and Bunker's Hill figured at 6/. Malayan tin concerns were also firm. Kampong improved 1/3 to 57/3, and Deebook rose 1/9 to 22/6. Ratrut was /2 lower at 27/9, while Tongkah Harbour went firm at 55/3. Barriers met with general support. Hills' advanced 3/9 to 74/, and Souths changed hands 6/ higher at £13/6/. British provided exchange 1/ higher at 49/, and North B.H. realised /9 more at 69/6. Other silver leads were taken at firm rates also. Bear attacks were responsible for declines in the copper section. Mount Morgan sagged to 29/, and Hampden sold down to 17/6, while Wallaroo figured at 55/. The delay in the announcement of the renewal of the copper contract was the chief tool in the hands of speculators. Among gold enterprises Westonias figured at varying levels. Deeps fell 1/1½ to 14/7½, and Centrals eased 1/6 to 18/, but Consols were deemed better property at up to 12/6. Mount Dudley opened /6 lower at 4/, but recovered /3 later. Mammoth Molybdenite found some support and rallied 1/3 to 12/3.

MICA IN QUEENSLAND.

TOWNSVILLE (Q.), Tuesday.

Mr. Randolph Bedford, M.L.C., has returned from Cloncurry after inspecting, on behalf of Melbourne investors, a new mica field 125 miles west of Cloncurry and 20 miles off the road to Camooweal. The mica is carried in dykes of all widths, selected deposits being 12 to 15 feet wide, and apparently filled with large crystals of mica, with well-developed cleavages and roughly 9 inches square. The mica has a high dielectric quality, and has answered tests satisfactorily. Developments at some depth show the produce to be clean and unstained.

AMUSEMENTS.

FAREWELL TO TALLEUR ANDREWS.

If a public poll were taken as to the relative popularity of singers Sydney audiences have heard during the past few years, Mr. Talleur Andrews would stand high in the list. Last night at the Playhouse Theatre he was given a complimentary farewell benefit, and the building was filled with well-wishers, who had the pleasure of hearing him sing. His rendering of various contributions demonstrated that his voice has lost none of its timbre, and that his popularity with Sydney audiences has not waned. He was supported by an excellent company.

At the conclusion Mr. Talleur Andrews was called before the curtain and returned thanks to the audience.

MR. CYRIL MONK'S RECITAL.

There was a large attendance at Mr. Cyril Monk's recital last night, chiefly inspired by a desire on the part of professional and amateur musicians to hear the first performance of John Ireland's "Sonata for Violin and Piano," in which the principal was associated with Mr. Ramsay Pennicuick. Ireland is a composer quite of the present day, his birth-date being 1879, and his father, formerly editor of the Manchester "Examiner" and "Times." The sonata won the prize at the International Musical Competition (1909) out of 134 compositions sent in from various countries.

In the very opening an agitated and persistent figure in the pianoforte part, to which for some time the violin declined to respond, gave a hint of the restless and uncertain mood in which the whole of the first movement is conceived. The most effective portion of it was the impassioned climax in which both instruments united, of which a highly spirited rendering was given. In the "Romance" which follows, the more beautiful music falls to the pianist, who suggested something of solemnity and mystery in rolling chords; and, indeed, the part may be said to have been coloured almost throughout by the employment of arpeggi. The violinist had one great opportunity in strenuous passages played with significance and vigour. The final movement, described as a "Rondo," was fantastic and imaginative, and was brilliantly rendered by both artists, who were warmly recalled at the close.

Modern classic composers seem capable of reaching the heart in grand opera, as in the case of Puccini and Charpentier, and a few others, but in chamber works their faults frequently arise from cheerfulness leading to a disconnect and spasmodic impression. It is possible, however, that we are living in a period of transition destined to bear more definite results in the next generation.

ROYAL NORTH SHORE HOSPITAL.

War pictures and lectures by Lieutenant-Colonel J. R. St. Vincent Welch, D.S.O., in aid of funds for the Royal North Shore Hospital, will be presented in the Gore Hill Town Hall to-morrow evening, and in the Killara Hall on Saturday.

THE MERRY MADCAPS.

Under the direction of Miss Nellie Christie, the Merry Madcaps and Boston Follies will give a combined entertainment at St. James's Hall to-morrow evening, when an attractive programme will be presented.

WAR LECTURE.

To-morrow at St. Aidan's Hall, Annandale, Captain-Chaplain James Wilson will deliver one of his popular war lectures. A high-class musical programme will be given during the interval.

BUILDINGS AND WORKS.

GENERAL NOTES.

One-half of the Queen Victoria Markets has been remodelled and fully occupied. The other half of the building has been vacated, and the work of dismantling prior to remodelling has commenced. Most of the tenants of the shops in the half now in the hands of the builders have removed to the section already completed. The remodelled portion has a very fine appearance. The immense awnings over the footpath in George-street have given way to the suspended awning, which is lighter and brighter, and the objectionable columns at the kerb line have disappeared. The immense trachyte columns supporting the heavy stone facade, which were always a hindrance, have now been cut back at the base, and completely covered up with the shop fronts. This in itself is a great improvement, for the heavy sombre balcony columns interfered greatly with the general appearance of the old shops. The interiors of the shops have been attractively finished. The fittings are in Queensland maple. Light and ventilation have been made a feature in the work of remodelling, and when the whole line of shops from Market-street to Druitt-street, on the George-street frontage, has been completed, the effect will be a very fine one.

The work of widening Flinders-street from Oxford-street to Moore Park is well in hand. The City Council has demolished the whole of the buildings on the western side of the thoroughfare, and the new alignment 20ft back has been made, and portion of the roadway has been widened. St. Michael's Anglican Church has been rebuilt to the new line. The hotel and tramway waiting-room, together with the reserve at the back of the tramway waiting shed near the entrance to Moore Park, have all been rebuilt. When the whole of the street has been blocked to the new line of kerb completed the thoroughfare will have a much improved appearance.

The City Council a year or two ago spent a large sum of money in forming, kerbing and guttering, and wood-blocking a new street running from the Museum to Woolloomooloo. In fact, at the time there was a good deal of criticism as to the costly way this work was being carried out. Now the kerb is being raised on the lower side of the roadway, the wood-blocking lifted, and the street laid to a new alignment. It will be interesting to know what the total cost will be.

Mr. S. H. Buchanan, architect, notifies that the tender of Messrs. Cummings and Dixon, builders, has been accepted for alterations to a cottage in Berwick-street, Coogee, and the erection of a motor garage. The tender of H. M. Mellor, builder, has been accepted for a bungalow at Narrabeen, and that of the Standard Waygood for the installation of a goods lift to a wool wash at Brisbane. In the same office plans are being prepared for a villa at Clifton Gardens.

Messrs. Morrow and De Putron, architects, have plans in hand for extensive factory premises at Chippendale; also plans for an extension of business premises at Rozelle, and for a first-class residence at Killara.

Messrs. G. M'Kinnon and Son have let contracts as follows:—Erection of a bungalow at Birriga-road, Bellevue Hill; Mr. J. H. Hugo, builder. Erection of a cottage at Bennelong-crescent, Bellevue Hill; Mr. J. Howarth, builder.

In the office of Mr. A. M'Kay, architect, Friday next has been fixed as the closing date of tenders for the erection of a new presbytery in Katoomba-street, Katoomba. In the same office plans have been completed for extensive additions to a convent at Woolwich-road, Woolwich.

Mr. D. Esplin, architect, has plans in hand for the erection of banking premises in George-street West.

The work of widening William-street is proceeding at a very slow pace. Twelve or eighteen months ago the Hyde Park portion was widened, and that section in front of the Museum and Public school was also set back to the new alignment. Then a start was made at the Darlinghurst end of the thoroughfare to pull down a few buildings. One or two of these have since disappeared, and there the matter ends. The traffic is great, and a narrow thoroughfare like William-street calls for immediate attention.

The Government Architect has completed plans and tenders are called for the erection of nurses' quarters at the Cottage Hospital at Bulli.

New Public school buildings are to be erected at Grubben, Morago, and Konorigan, and new residences for teachers are to be built at Yetman and Abernethy. Improvements are to be carried out at the following schools:—Grubben, Gulf Creek, Sebastopol, and Bolong.

MEDICAL, CHEMICALS, ETC.

A LITTLE GIRL from Newtown was brought to me three years ago to have some Teeth extracted. She was 14 years old, but had been in bed since birth. Her heart was so bad that I could hear it wheezing when standing two yards away. The doctors would not give her chloroform on account of the condition of her heart. I extracted three of her teeth by my Special Painless Method without affecting her in the slightest. Her mother was so delighted that she still brings me in patients. MY SPECIAL METHOD OF PAINLESS EXTRACTIONS is absolutely safe for children or aged people, or those suffering from a weak heart. No broken stumps are left in the gums. There is no painful pricking, and no swollen gums or festers. Even ulcerated teeth I extract quite painlessly. In addition to this, my Patients have the advantage of

DENTIST PHILLIP MOSES.

RICKARD'S ALPHABET OF BARGAINS

PUBLISHED EVERY WEDNESDAY.

Said "Sapper Bob" to "Gunner Hal,"
"It's home you want, and lively Gal.
Take my advice, and git a go.
See 'SOLDIERS' FRIEND,' RICKARD AND CO."

Away he went, and then he met
Damsel reading ALPHABET,
Who shyly glanced, and said, "Oh, my, Hal."
He squeezed her hand, said "What, you, Sal?"

They sat them down, went through the list,
Read every item, nothing missed,
He picked a home-site—just the thing—
Then went outside, and bought the ring.

LADIES,—
BE A THRIFTER.
DON'T OVERLOOK THIS ONE BEST BET.
One of the first principles of success is obtaining all your goods at the lowest prices.
U can't stop people, both old and young, even in your own home, from liking chocolates, and spending money thereon; therefore even if U do not want to make money by supplying them, you can certainly SAVE A LARGE SUM PER ANNUM by making them, to say nothing of the satisfaction of knowing just WHAT U are eating.
HOME-MADE SWEETS EXCEL IMPORTED
if U have the proper formulas. From our system, and actual work recipes, the old-fashioned way of stopping in cold water, or the "pinch," "feather," "hard and soft ball degrees," ARE EXPLODED. If you will merely follow our instructions, as children have done, and leave your candy severely alone after it starts to boil, and go and make your bed, dust your room, or any old thing other than hanging around the pan bestowing attention both needless and POSITIVELY HARMFUL, it's a sure certainty U will be confronted by success after success.
We TEACH FREE to prove this, PERSONALLY OR BY POST, with FREE MATERIAL in both instances.
After a lesson, if any difficulty is found in any recipe,
COME IN AND MAKE IT FREE, OR WRITE.
